In a drive to thwart any attempt to evacuate Rommel's men from Tunisia, allied planes bombed axis Mediterranean harbors and air fields. In Gagliari harbor, Sardinia, two large ships and a warehouse can be seen burning. In all, 32 axis ships and 95 planes were destroyed in the raid. (Official Army Air Force Photo.) (NEA Telephoto.)

Housewives Choose For First Week-End Under Meat Rations

OPA Issues Warning Against Any Point Free Meat Sales

Washington, April 3.—(AP)—As the nation's housewives do their first week-end shopping under the meat point-rationing system today, they can choose from stocks which—in most places—are sufficiently increased that the Office of Price Administration has issued a warning against "point free" sales.

While in some instances the pre-rationing rush left butchers' supplies still depleted, the general improvement in stocks during the past week is so marked that cases of unrated sales to avoid spoiling were reported last night.

OPA promptly said its regulations provide ample protection for butchers whose supplies are threatened with spoilage, and warned that "point free" sales will be dealt with sternly. Officials reminded retailers that they are permitted to "stimulate sales legally" by lowering point values, providing they post signs to that effect, report to their local rationing boards and follow the OPA-outlined procedure.

Reluctance of housewives to part with their points until they understand their "counter" value better was blamed largely for the cases of over-supply.

Various Situations

A survey showed these situations in various sections:

Chicago—Dealers in five-state Great Lakes area generally well stocked compared with last week, when runs were commonplace.

New York—Shortage apparently ended as result of temporary relief measures, curtailed consumer demand and point hoarding.

Portland—Dealers doing only one-third of last week's business, but able to get only 50 per cent of the beef needed to meet demands.

Birmingham—Situation improved, but still not enough beef for demand.

Des Moines—Supplies adequate, but still incomplete compared with past.

Toledo—Dealers assure adequate week-end supplies.

Minneapolis—Twin-city supply adequate. Nearly all cuts available.

Dallas—Over-supply replaces shortage of recent weeks.

ON THE HOME FRONT

A week-end look-around:

Saving up points for a Sunday dinner—or a feast some other day—may be a new American custom, the week's meat sales seem to indicate.

Meat market operators have noted a tendency of housewives to hang onto their red ration coupons this week. Of course, this may be attributable principally to heavy pre-ration buying, but cooking experts see the likelihood of a general trend in this regard.

That is, a way for a small family to get a roast, for example, is to save up points—by eating meat substitute dishes—until enough have been accumulated to spend for a good-sized roast without jeopardizing the chances of having meat the following week.

Frontiers: The search for rationed items has turned attention to less familiar foods, providing plenty of opportunities for cooks with a pioneering spirit.

An Oklahoma official declared the other day that 10,000,000 crows—which he claimed taste

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

What guarantees are our hard-working statesmen going to be able to devise against the whelping of another war-mongering Hitler when once we have ended the present conflict?

The Nazi fuhrer himself practices wholesale sterilization to prevent perpetuation of elements he doesn't like. That's an idea, but sterilization of entire militaristic nations doesn't seem to fit in with civilized practices.

British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, speaking Friday before the Canadian parliament in Ottawa, gave an answer for one angle of this complicated problem in declaring as regards German, Italy and Japan:

"There is only one security for mankind in respect of all of them: To ensure that they are totally disarmed and in no position ever to try their strength again."

Our own Under Secretary of State Welles carried the matter rather deeper in an address the same day in New York City before the Chamber of Commerce of the state of New York. He said:

"In attempting to put an end to war we face a problem that the human race has never yet been able to solve. But of one thing I am perfectly sure: The greatest obstacle to success is defeatism—the assumption that nations are by nature so antagonistic, that foreign peoples are so untrustworthy or that the technical problems of constructing peace machinery are so great that the task is a hopeless one."

That seems to invite the further question of whether human nature can be changed. History is likely to record that the only

Stowaway

Joliet, Ill., April 3.—(AP)—David Pedersen, serving a one year to life sentence for burglary, tried an old trick but it failed to work.

Pedersen, who was missing when the count of prisoners was made in Stateville prison last night, was found by guards early today hiding under a pile of lumber in the penitentiary furniture factory, where he had stowed away for the night. He said he intended to attempt to escape over the prison walls before daylight.

Warden Joseph E. Ragen said Pedersen stowed away on a freighter Honolulu-bound from California in 1934, and was arrested in Honolulu.

Russians Announce Winter's Offensive Cost Nazis Heavily

Claim 850,000 Germans Killed; 343,525 Made Prisoners of War

Moscow, April 3.—(AP)—The Red army, in a sweeping winter offensive now ended which is officially declared to have resulted in the killing of 850,000 Germans, has pushed its lines almost to Velizh, 70 miles northwest of Smolensk on the central front, and within about 15 miles of White Russia, war maps published in the official press disclosed today.

Hammering hard to drive the Germans from their Kuban bridgehead in the Caucasus, the Russians have advanced to the eastern gates of Novorossisk, the Black Sea naval base, are practically at the front doors of Staraya Russa in the Lake Ilmen area and are but 12 miles east of

Brig. Gen. Howard Ramey Is Missing

Allied Headquarters in Australia, April 3.—(AP)—Another Japanese shipping concentration has been scattered from its base in the islands above Australia by General Douglas MacArthur's bombers, allied headquarters said today, but there was somber news in another headquarters announcement that 47-year-old Brig. Gen. Howard K. Ramey and his crew were lost on a recent bombing mission.

Gen. Ramey was commander of the Fifth Bomber Command of the Fifth United States Air Force. He was the sixth United States general to be killed, listed as missing, or wounded in the war.

The newest Japanese fleet dispersal was accomplished Thursday in the harbor at Kavieng, on the northern tip of New Ireland, about 550 miles northeast of Port Moresby.

About 13 Japanese ships, including destroyers, were sighted in the harbor and a half dozen others were in adjoining Steffens Strait, it was reported, representing nearly 50,000 tons of shipping.

The communique said a 10,000-ton transport and a 6,000-ton cargo ship probably were hit. The fliers were unable to observe further results in the darkness.

Airdromes at Kavieng and at Gasmata, and Cape Gloucester, New Britain, also were attacked.

Army Intimidation of Mine Workers Is Denied by Officials

Lewis' Accusation Is Seconded by Heads of Miners Unions

New York, April 3.—(AP)—Army officials have denied an accusation by John L. Lewis, United Mine Workers president, that agents of the Army military intelligence service intimidated miners "with the implied suggestion that a second military front is to be established in the coal fields of the country."

On the heels of Lewis' assertion yesterday that Army men were appearing at district offices in the Fifth and Sixth Corps areas, Maj. Gen. H. S. Aurand, commanding general of the Sixth Service Command, speaking in Chicago, said:

"There are no military intelligence agents in this service command who have the authority to use intimidating tactics. Such action is an impossibility."

At Columbus, O., Maj. Gen. Fred C. Wallace, commanding general of the Fifth Service command, declared:

"... No military intelligence personnel of the Fifth Service Command has appeared at any district office of the United Mine Workers, has approached any of its officers, or any of the miners."

Lewis charged that "agents of military intelligence are appearing at our district offices demanding names of coal companies, locations of mines, names of officers and members of local unions."

Second Lewis' Charge

Seconding Lewis' charge were Ray Edmundson, Chicago, president of District 12, UMW, and Louis Austin, Terre Haute, Ind., District 11 head.

In Chicago, Edmundson said:

"I can verify the statements made by Mr. Lewis from personal experience and from information from local union officers in various parts of the state. Also local management personnel."

"Army intelligence has a bunch of Gestapo agents, or persons imitating the Gestapo in intimidating and coercing workers in an attempt to win submission to a starvation role in the war effort as dictated by the bureaucrats in Washington."

Austin said a man with credentials showing he was from Army intelligence was in his Terre Haute office Wednesday inquiring why Indiana miners had not yet signed a temporary agreement with strip mine operators.

"When I asked him what he had been 'checking up,' Austin said, 'he said, 'The sentiment of the miners.'"

The Fifth Service Command covers Indiana, Kentucky, West Virginia and Ohio, while the Sixth includes Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan.

The UMW and northern and southern Appalachian bituminous groups are still deadlocked on negotiations and are now in recess until Monday. Major UMW demands include a $2 a day wage increase and an $8 daily minimum for all workers.

Estate Valued at $1,250,000; Many Bequests Outlined

The will of former Governor Frank O. Lowden was filed today by Attorney Arthur M. Kracke, of Davis & Kracke, in the County Court at Oregon. Former Governor Lowden died on March 20 in Tucson, Arizona. He was 82 years of age. The will disposes of an estate estimated in excess of $1,250,000. Outright bequests are made to personal employees: To Nellie M. Hanley, $2,500; William Hewitt, chauffeur with the family 42 years, $500; Maxine Brown, nurse, $2,500. To employees of Sinnissippi farm, the Lowden home in Oregon, Ogle county: George E. McClaren, farm superintendent and with the family 40 years, $2,500; Lee M. Gentry, manager of the farm, $2,500; Mervin Spangler, employee at Castle Rest, the Lowden summer home in the Thousand Islands, is left $500. To each employee of Sinnissippi Farm, Inc., on the park payroll for two years or more at the time of former Governor Lowden's death, and to each household and stable employee of Sinnissippi Farm for over one year, $100. Income from $1,500 left to the Ogle County Farm Institute is to provide prizes to a boy and a girl for excellence. The Light House Methodist Episcopal church, Nashua township, Ogle county, receives $1,500 for maintenance and support. $2,500 to the Oregon Public Library for the Florence Pullman Lowden Memorial fund and $5,000 to the Blackhawk Boy Scout trust. $30,000 less amounts paid by former Governor Lowden in his lifetime to Visiting Nurses Association of Chicago for endowment of nurse to be known as Florence Pullman Lowden Nurse.

Trust Company Executor

His private papers, documents, correspondence and manuscripts go to Florence Lowden Miller, a daughter. The residuary estate is left to The Northern Trust Company, executor and trustee, the income to go to three daughters, Mrs. Albert F. Madener, Jr. and Mrs. Philip Miller of Chicago

Robert Montgomery Gets 30-Day Leave

San Francisco, April 3.—(AP)—Back from South Pacific sea battles, former screen star Robert Montgomery headed today for Los Angeles, and a reunion with his wife and two children whom he has seen only five days during the past two years.

Montgomery—Lieutenant Commander Henry Montgomery, Jr. to the Navy, arrived yesterday with a 30-day leave to enable him to recover from tropical fever.

"It's going to be a wonderful reunion," he said.

Montgomery said he was with the sea force which shelled Munda, New Georgia, Jan. 5, and Kolombangara island Jan. 24. He also served on a destroyer on a dangerous patrol duty off Guadalcanal.

Phillips Resigns Post Under Harold Ickes

Chicago, April 3.—(AP)—Ill health has caused Frank Phillips, founder of the Phillips Petroleum Co., to resign as chairman of the general committee of the petroleum industry for district two.

"I have just returned from a month's observation at Washington University Barnes hospital, St. Louis, Mo., and at my doctors' insistence I have today tendered my resignation x x x to petroleum administrator Harold Ickes," Phillips said in a press statement.

He was one of the leaders in organizing the petroleum industry for war production, directing production, distribution and sales of petroleum products in 15 inland states. Phillips' home is in Bartlesville, Okla.

Army's Fliers' Record in West Remarkable

Washington, April 3.—(AP)—American Army fliers shot down seven Japanese planes for every one they lost in engagements with the enemy during the past three months.

In announcing the remarkable record established by Army fliers who shot down 384 Japanese planes while losing only 54 of their own, the war department said yesterday that enemy losses included only those known to be destroyed while American losses included all planes listed as missing as well as those known to have been destroyed in combat.

Allied Troops Take Breathing Spell in Battle for Tunisia

Commander-in-Chief of Armies There Meets His Subordinates

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, April 3.—(AP)—General Dwight D. Eisenhower, returning from conferences with Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery and Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, said today fresh forces under Alexander, with effective air support, were "continuing to make satisfactory progress" in the task of smashing the axis out of Africa.

The allied commander-in-chief inspected the Mareth front.

The day's allied communique, reporting patrol activity all along the Tunisian front, said the British First Army of Lieut. Gen. K. A. N. Anderson was making further progress in the north and inflicting casualties on the enemy. British and American aerial forces against Rommel's retreating forces on the coastal road above Gabes were reported.

General Eisenhower said the air forces had produced a fighting machine of "the highest morale, great efficiency and complete determination to finish the job."

Eisenhower said the situation now permitted the disclosure of certain dispositions of the troops fighting in Tunisia.

The elements which form General Alexander's 18th army group are:

The British First Army under Anderson in the north, in which is incorporated a French corps under General Kœnig.

Two Investigations of OPA Under Way

Washington, April 3.—(AP)—The Office of Price Administration was faced with a double-barreled congressional investigation today as Administrator Prentiss Brown took steps to cultivate better relations with the public.

Soon after Brown disclosed he had authorized a deputy, Lou Maxon, to review "all actions which bear on OPA relations with the public in order to minimize irritations flowing from them," Chairman Patman (DD-Tex) of the house committee on small business announced he had ordered an immediate investigation of Brown's agency to determine whether it has exceeded powers granted by congress.

In addition, various operations of the OPA have been slated for study by a special house committee investigating actions of federal agencies to determine whether they exceed authority granted by congress.

Brown's action in designating Maxon, a Detroit advertising man, to review all OPA activities to determine whether they will help or hurt OPA's relations with the public was regarded as significant.

It stressed the different trend of administration advocated by Brown in contrast to the "tough" policy which prevailed under his predecessor, Leon Henderson.

Lee County Board Sees Organization Meeting Necessary

A call has been issued for a special meeting of the Lee county board of supervisors to be held at the court house, Tuesday, April 20, at 10 o'clock in the morning for the purpose of electing a chairman and organizing the several committees. Supervisor J. W. Cortright of South Dixon township is reported to be unopposed for the chairmanship for the ensuing year.

While one bloc of members of the Lee county board of supervisors opposed calling a special session later in April for the purpose of electing a chairman and reorganizing the board, a much larger group favored the special meeting and won their point when a vote was taken. Supervisor L. D. Hemenway of Alto township had argued that the special organization meeting would cost the county approximately 200, which amount could be saved by waiting until the date for the regular May meeting to elect a new chairman and perfect the organization of the

Strangers

Chicago, April 3.—(AP)—A 36-year-old father was relieved of making $7 weekly payments for support of his infant daughter in Circuit court yesterday after he agreed never to see her again and to become a stranger to her.

The infant's parents, Joseph Bein and Mrs. Estelle Bein, 23, were divorced last Nov. 6. Mrs. Bein received custody of her daughter, Hedy, 16 months old, and Bein was ordered to pay $7 weekly for her support.

A yesterday Judge Thomas A. Lynch signed an order amending the original divorce decree, making Bein's separation from his daughter final and exempting him from future payments for her support.

By the amended order, Bein, a taxicab driver, is prohibited from seeing or talking to his daughter and "shall have no rights whatsoever in and concerning said child, and shall henceforth be a stranger to said child."

Farm Block's Revolt Threatens Veto of Bankhead's Measure

Roosevelt's Rejection of Bill May Be Overridden Next Week

Washington, April 3.—(AP)—With congress in recess for the week-end, administration leaders on Capitol Hill worked feverishly today to head off a farm bloc revolt that threatens to override President Roosevelt's veto of the Bankhead bill.

The test will come on Tuesday when the lawmakers will decide whether to sustain or reject the president's contention that the measure, which prohibits deduction of government benefit payments in calculating agricultural parity prices, is inflationary.

Another legislative battle is brewing over the anti-sabotage bill which the house passed yesterday on a voice vote. Opponents of the measure, which provides a death penalty for a group of prohibited hostile acts, claim it could be used to curb freedom of the press and speech. They look to the senate to kill the bill.

Meanwhile Senator Ellison D. (Cotton Ed) Smith, South Carolina Democrat, made plans to lay some tangible evidence before his colleagues that retail prices are out of proportion to what the farmer receives for his products.

The colorful legislator said he intends to send his clerks out next week to make some purchases and bring back sales slips to show what they cost.

To Investigate OPA

On the other side of the Capitol, the house small business committee prepared to start an investigation of OPA to determine whether it has exceeded its authority.

In the midst of these activities Administrator Prentiss Brown disclosed steps to improve relations between his agency and the public. He announced that one of his deputies, Lou Maxon, a Detroit advertising man, had been given authority to "review all actions which bear on OPA relations with the public in order to minimize irritations flowing from them."

General improvement in meat stocks during the past week brought a new problem to the agency—"point free" sales by butchers to avoid spoiling of stocks on hand.

The OPA said its regulations provide ample protection for butchers whose supplies are threatened with spoilage and warned that "point free" sales will be dealt with sternly.

Other developments on the Washington front included:

Petroleum Administrator Harold L. Ickes ordered a drastic reshuffling of the petroleum supply and distribution system in 15 midwestern states to expand the flow of oil to the east coast.

Secretary Knox disclosed a fleet of huge floating drydocks, built to follow the fighting and speed warships back into action, soon will provide a new Navy punch in forthcoming Pacific battles.

Work Stoppage at Ford Chicago Plant Is Ended

Chicago, April 3.—(AP)—J. A. Adams, president of local 551 of the CIO United Automobile Workers of America, announced today that union members involved in a two-day work stoppage at the Ford Motor Company's Chicago assembly plant, resumed work this morning "under protest."

Members of the local voted last night to settle their grievances "through the regular channels," Adams said. Union spokesmen said the immediate cause of the dispute was the employment on the production line of two men who previously withdrew from the union to take jobs as plant guards. They said about 700 men were involved in the stoppage.

Report Kennedy Has Resigned WLB Post

Washington, April 3.—(AP)—A report that secretary-treasurer Thomas Kennedy of the United Mine Workers has quit the War Labor Board in a quarrel with its policies brought from the White House today only the response that Kennedy has written the president a letter.

Presidential Secretary Stephen Early told reporters he does not know what is in the letter.

The Washington Post linked the reported resignation to mine leader John L. Lewis' demands for a $2 a day wage increase for coal miners.

Special Navy Unit to Visit Sterling

Seventeen-year-old high school seniors and graduates in this area will have an opportunity to take the preliminary tests for Navy Air Force pilot training when a special Naval Aviation Board visits Sterling April 7 and 8, it has been announced by the Naval Aviation Cadet Selection Board at Chicago. This board which will give applicants eye, teeth and mental tests and check obvious physical defects—will be at the Sterling post office from 9:00 a. m. to 4 p. m. though youths are urged to appear in the morning if possible.

In order to be eligible to appear before the special Naval Aviation Board, 17-year-olds must have a written recommendation from their high school principal or college armed services representative. Only students who will be graduated from high school by June 30 or already have been graduated and rank scholastically in the upper half of their high school graduating class or, if at college, maintain a scholastic standing in the upper two-thirds of their class, may obtain this recommendation.

Applicants who pass the preliminary tests given by the special board will be sent—at the Navy's expense—to the Naval Aviation Cadet Selection Board for final tests. Those who pass these tests will be sworn in immediately, but will not be called to training until they have graduated from high school and are 18 years old. Full details about this program—called the Navy's V-5 program—may be obtained from high school principals, college heads or the special Naval Aviation Board coming to this area.

Wide Expansion of Education After War, Dykstra Prediction

Chicago, April 3.—(AP)—Federal and state subsidies will be established in the post-war period for the education of the young men and women who served in the nation's armed forces, says Clarence Dykstra, president of the University of Wisconsin.

The job of educating them, he said in a speech yesterday, might even be part of the demobilization program, with the students remaining in uniform until they completed their schooling. Dykstra predicted a huge expansion in education after the war.

The Wisconsin educator was one of several speakers at a regional conference called by the Council of State Governments for a discussion of post-war plans. Attending the meeting, which continued today, were governors and officials of 16 midwest and west states.

Students who have left school for military service "have gone out to fight for the right to an education," Dykstra told the conference. "And the people back home are going to see that they get at least an education when they return."

Lee Farmer Meets Death on Crossing Near Home Friday

Burlington Streamliner Strikes His Car on Village Street

Francis Leo O'Donnell, 48, was killed instantly at 10:01 o'clock Friday morning when the Zephyr, streamlined Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad passenger train, struck his automobile at a crossing in the village of Lee, south-east of Rochelle.

The Zephyr was bound from Chicago to Minneapolis, and O'Donnell, who was driving toward the Lee grain elevator, apparently did not see the train approaching and drove into its path.

The crossing at which the crash occurred is located about 500 feet east of the Lee depot. Scene of the accident is in DeKalb county, only 100 feet from the DeKalb-Lee county line.

O'Donnell's car was dragged 50 feet by the train.

W. W. Cooper of Genoa, deputy coroner of DeKalb county, conducted an inquest into the fatality at the Thorsen funeral home in Shabbona last night.

World War Veteran

A veteran of the first World War, O'Donnell resided a mile from Lee. He was born in DeKalb county, March 19, 1895, and was married in June, 1934, to the former Vera Bark. His parents, Michael and Ellen O'Donnell, were pioneer Lee settlers.

Surviving O'Donnell are his widow; a daughter, Eleanor Marie, two and a half years old; two brothers, Harry of Lee and Edmund of Chicago; and two sisters, Miss Eleanor O'Donnell of Waukegan and Mrs. Agnes Herman of Lee.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a. m. Monday at St. James Catholic church at Lee. The Rev. Fr. William J. Curran will officiate, and burial will be in the Lee cemetery.

In the last 11 months of 1942, the U. S. Air Forces lost a total of 309 warplanes of all types, against a verified destruction of 987 and a probable destruction of 362 more enemy aircraft.

One of the manufacturers of aircraft instruments and accessories has increased its war production to approximately 20 times that of pre-war levels. One-third of this increase was in new types of accessories.

A Marine Writes as Follows:

And if our lines should form and break,
Because of things you failed to make—
The extra tank or ship or plane
For which we waited all in vain,
And the supplies that never came
Will you then come and take the blame?
For we, not you, will pay the cost
Of battles you, not we, have lost.

This Marine has not written in vain. America will, America must produce the tools of war that the purchase of War Bonds make possible. This bank is glad to sell U. S. War Bonds without cost to our government.

Mother and Daughter Banquet
Mrs. Bessie Wendell, chairman of the general committee for the mother-and-daughter banquet, called a meeting of her committee Tuesday night at the school house. The date set for the banquet is Tuesday, April 27. It was impossible to make definite plans as it will be necessary to consult the ration board concerning some food. The general committee is composed of two members from each of the churches and are: Mrs. Bessie Wendell, chairman; Mrs. Mary Miller, Mrs. Marjorie Howard and Mrs. Catherine Tholen; Mrs. Lois Gross and Mrs. Donald Roop; Mrs. Clara Underwood and Mrs. Alice Burhenn.

Circles Will Meet
The circles of the W. S. C. S. of the Methodist church will meet next Thursday, April 8, as follows:

Circle 1 will meet with Miss Dorothy Durkes. She will be assisted by Mrs. Bessie Turner. Leader, Mrs. Seeks Johnson.

Circle 2 will meet with Mrs. Lucy Ives. All members are asked to bring needles, thimbles and scissors.

Circle 3 will meet at the home of the hostesses, Mrs. Hannah Myers and Mrs. Selma Fish.

Entertained Club

Mrs. Mae Gross entertained the members of the Kilo club at her home Tuesday afternoon. The roll call was very interesting, being responded to by a household hint, which was very helpful. Mrs. Carrie Mong gave a reading concerning Alaska. After the program a social hour followed during which refreshments were served. The next meeting will be April 11 with Miss Carrie Anderson.

Entertained At Cards

Mr. and Mrs. Claire Pfoutz entertained Monday evening with cards Mr. and Mrs. Carl Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hatch, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Zoeller. Five-hundred was played. After cards refreshments were enjoyed.

Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Presbyterian church was held last Monday night at the church. Rev. Montanus presided and Henry Dierdorff acted as clerk. Following a devotional service led by the pastor, the business session was called to order. The reports of the church treasurer and of the various societies of the church showed each to have had a prosperous year; all treasurers reporting substantial balances. The following officers were elected: Trustees, Wesley Herwig and Frank Senger; organist and assistant, Mrs. June Group and Miss Vivian Miller; chorister, Mrs. William Black; head usher, Louis Meyer. A report on attendance for the year showed it to be 87% of the membership and running as high as 93% for the high month. The pastor closed the meeting with an expression of gratitude to the members of the church for their loyal support and cooperation during the year just completed.

Brethren Aid Society

The Aid society of the Church of the Brethren will meet next Wednesday afternoon, April 7. Devotions—Ruth Hussey. Program, "Nature Interests"—Ruth Hussey.

Scramble Supper

Over 50 people gathered at the Methodist church Wednesday evening for a scramble supper which was especially good. After the supper, the annual business meeting of the church was held. Lay Leader F. J. Blocher presided over the meeting. Officers were elected, as follows: Financial secretary, J. H. Lincoln; treasurer, Clyde Phillips; communion steward, Miss Clara Lahman; superintendent of the Sunday school, Fred C. Gross; trustees, Henry Helmershausen, J. H. Lincoln and F. J. Blocher; stewards, Adrain Kersten, Karl Frankie, Mrs. S. A. Durkes; lay leader, Roy Dillon; recording secretary, Evalyn Shoemaker.

Reports of the various officers of the church were given after which talks were given by Mrs. Henry Helmershausen and F. J. Blocher, the thought being "looking forward".

Completely Surprised

The Rev. and Mrs. Carl Montanus invited the Tuxis to their home in Ashton Wednesday evening for a surprise on their son Neil who was celebrating his birthday anniversary. About 25 were present. Games of all kinds were played after which refreshments were served. Neil received some very lovely and useful gifts.

Stores Will Open

Beginning next Wednesday, April 7, the stores will remain open. They have been closed during the week since the first of January. This will make it better for the farmers who soon will be busy in their fields and cannot get to town during the day.

Union Lenten Services

* Union Lenten services will begin next Sunday evening and continue until Easter. April 4, the Rev. S. L. Cover will speak at the Methodist church. On April 11 the Rev. Carl Montanus will speak at the Brethren church and on April 18 the Rev. T. B. Reeves will speak at the Presbyterian church. Each Sunday evening at 7:30. Everyone who is able should attend.

The Holy Week services this year will be at the Brethren church and each of the pastors will speak. Good Friday services will be at the Methodist church at 1:30 p. m.

Today on the Home Front

By JAMES MARLOW and GEORGE ZIELKE

The income tax situation is foggy—but clear.

It's clear to this extent: You'll have to pay as much taxes this year as if nobody had ever mentioned pay-as-you-go or any other change in the present law.

It's foggy because the whole tax problem is up in the air and probably will stay there for months to come.

So for months to come, don't expect any change in the way you are going to pay your taxes—or in the amount you pay.

Remember this, too, for your peace of mind: No matter what plans are offered in the months ahead, no matter what else you hear, no new tax arrangement will become a law until President Roosevelt has signed it (or congress has passed it over a presidential veto).

Republicans in the house who backed the Ruml-Carlson plan—and some Democrats—now talk of compromising on "forgiving" the first 19 units of the tax on 1942 incomes—the 6 per cent normal antax and the first 13 per cent surtax bracket. This would mean the average taxpayer would have his 1942 tax wiped off the slate. But then what?

Even if this plan were enacted quickly, he'd still have to pay his June 15 tax installment (same as on March 15), only it would apply on 1943 taxes—and so would the March payment.

Then he'd go on a pay-as-you-earn basis July 1. Starting on that date, he would have 20 per cent (over exemptions) of his pay deducted—which would approximately cover his taxes (including Victory tax).

At the end of the year, he'd still have to file a report on his 1943 income, perhaps make a small payment—perhaps even get a small refund—on the difference between the actual tax due, as figured on his report, and the amount he had paid in taxes this year (the March and June payments, plus the total deducted from his pay.)

based on the 16th chapter of John.

Union service. Next Sunday evening the series of union Lenten services will begin at the Methodist church at 7:30. The Rev. Coyer will be the speaker. Let's all get out and make these services a real spiritual revival in our community.

Presbyterian. Next Wednesday, April 7, Rock River Presbyterian will meet in all-day session at the Dixon Presbyterian church. The opening devotional service is at 9 o'clock. Several cars from this church will be in attendance. If you wish to go, call Mrs. Louis Meyer.

DIXON ONE-STOP SERVICE ENLARGES PARTS DEPT. INTO MODERN DISPLAY

KEG-O'-NAILS

When Hitler's call was put thru to Heaven, he asked for Moses.

"I'd like some information about that Red Sea job of yours," Hitler asked Moses. "I want to get my boys across the English Channel this spring. You used a rod to make the waters roll back. I'd like to borrow the rod."

"That's right," said Moses. "Unfortunately, the rod is no longer in my possession."

"Where is it?" asked Hitler. "Perhaps I could get it,"

"In the British museum," Moses replied.

The Dixon One-Stop Service Garage recently found it again necessary to enlarge their farm implement parts department. After they explained their problem, our planning department advised them and helped plan the modern display show room illustrated in the above picture.

Our variety and stock of materials, our up-to-the-minute knowledge of government material building regulations combined with our years of experience in building, remodeling and repairing brought about this modern farm-implement parts display.

If you have some building or remodeling problem, plan now to come in our office at your first opportunity. We will be glad to discuss it with you and tell you what is possible, the grade of materials available and the approximate cost.

A Thought for Today
How forcible are right words! but what doth your arguing reprove?—Job 6:25.

We are pouring our words into a sieve, and lose our labor.—Plautus.

War Shipping Problem

Figures just published by the War Department give added reason to question whether it is desirable to put 8,200,000 men into uniform by the end of this year.

Even with these figures it is not possible to build up, for public information, a mathematical proof that would be foolproof. Part of the necessary material is known only to a few very highly placed officials, and the other can not be printed without danger of giving aid to the enemy.

However, from usable, generally known facts, the nature of the argument can be indicated clearly.

Every soldier serving overseas, the Army reports, requires 82 pounds of cargo a day. This multiplies to 15 tons a year. Each Liberty ship, making an average of three round trips a year, can transport 15,000 tons a year. That is, one Liberty ship must be kept shuttling back and forth across the oceans for every 1,000 men we maintain overseas.

To supply 2,500,000 expeditionaires would call for 2,500 vessels of 10,000-ton nominal capacity or 25,000,000 tons of shipping.

There are few who know exactly how much shipping the United Nations now command. We are not of that select company. If we were, we would not feel privileged to mention the figure. But by a synthetic process—using no figures and no logic not available to axis intelligence—it is possible to estimate that virtually the entire cargo capacity of the United Nations today would be required to supply 2,500,000 American soldiers scattered from England to Australia.

So far as can be learned, we now are building ships faster than submarines are sinking them. To this extent we are building up our aggregate cargo capacity.

But servicing our overseas army is not the only function of our cargo fleet. There is the actual transport of men abroad. There is lease-lend equipment and material to be taken to Britain, Russia, China, and elsewhere in lesser quantities. There is importation of raw materials, needed for war industry, from sources so located that they can not be brought as return load in Army cargo ships.

If servicing an overseas force of 2,500,000 would so strain our facilities, what is the purpose of an Army of 8,200,000 men? Is it the plan to assemble the Army and pray for some break? Would it not be wiser to keep as many men as possible turning out war materiel, building ships, growing food, until they can be used as soldiers within a foreseeable future?

Join—Or Quit

The A. F. of L. Machinists union has a contract with the Warner & Swasey plant in Cleveland. There is no closed shop clause. Warner & Swasey is so hard-pressed for manpower, to produce war goods, that some 350 school teachers, lawyers and office workers are working four-hour shifts, on top of their regular jobs, to help out.

These volunteers have been ordered by the Machinists Union to "join or quit." Most have joined, unwillingly. Some have quit, also unwillingly. The union president concedes that he has no right to enforce membership, but says that "insistence" of fellow workers usually proves an effective persuaded.

What would happen if these volunteer patriots insisted upon keeping both their jobs and their independence? A strike? You guess.

Strike at Sea

According to Kenneth H. Irwin, who claims to have been present, there was an occasion when a union crew refused to unload military supplies off Guadalcanal, so that soldiers had to turn stavedore for the occasion. The crew refused to unload without time-and-a-half pay for overtime work.

It was the Pacific Coast Marine Firemen, Oilers, Water Tenders and Wipers Association (independent) which was involved, and not the National Maritime Union. The offense was in no way mitigated because the wrong union was named in the original stories. And public confidence in government publicity must suffer from the way in which the original story was denied on a technicality.

Reorganization Indicated

State and local governments are being driven by war into making long-needed administrative reforms. A survey by the Civil Service Assembly shows a turnover of close to 50 per cent in key administrative and technical personnel. About half of those who leave are taken into the armed forces.
The rest enter federal service, war industry, etc.

To meet such situations alert communities are revamping old setups. Louisville, for example, has reorganized the police department to offset the loss of 25 per cent of its experienced men. Wichita has completely revamped administrative machinery, consolidating 15 major departments into five.

Even the war cloud has a silver lining.

A Real Hero

There must be some sort of really significant medal which can be given to Lloyd Converse, 43-year-old aluminum worker who ploughed 20 miles through a blizzard, afoot in sub-zero weather, to be on his job in the morning, and then worked two consecutive eight-hour shifts.

Such devotion should be, in the words of Donald Nelson, "a real inspiration to every American war worker." Its recognition with an important medal would add to the inspiration. To men like Converse none will begrudge the often too casually bestowed title "soldier of industry."

It's still a good idea to lay everything you can for a rainy day—except work.

Ernie Pyle Writes Special Message from North Africa

NORTH AFRICA—The American's love for pets never ceases to delight me. We are a people who are fundamentally kind to animals. You'd be surprised at how many nationalities aren't.

Our soldiers over here are shocked—I've heard them remark on it a hundred times—at the way the Arabs mistreat their dogs and burros.

You'd laugh if you could see the collection of pets at one camp I visited recently. There were countless dogs, several cats, one gazelle, one monkey, two or three rabbits,
a burro, and, believe it or not,
half a dozen chickens.

A gazelle, as somebody said, is a cross between a jackrabbit and a moose. Actually it's a tiny, dol-like deer, delicate and dainty, and stands no higher than a big dog.

You've heard of the gazelle's speed. They say they've been clocked at 60 miles an hour. They run wild in the mountains near here, and the French hunt them with shotguns. Many of our officers have gone on gazelle-hunting trips. Personally I could no more shoot one of them than I could a friendly dog.

About the cutest dog on the post is a fuzzy little mongrel called "Ziggy," which belongs to Corp.
Robert Pond, of (2147 Marion St.)
Denver. He paid 500 francs for it.
When the American actresses were in Africa, Carole Landis took Bob's dog in her arms and asked if she could take it home with her.
Seems she has two Great Danes and wanted a little dog to go with them. Bob, coolly superior to glamour, said "No."

I happened to fall in with four young lieutenants of a bomber crew who had recently arrived from America. They had been on three missions in their first ten days, and had got shot up every time. Not shot down—just shot up.

The third time one engine was knocked out, and one rudder fell clear of just as they landed at the home airfield. They really started getting their thrills in a hurry.

I asked them whether this sudden taste of violent adventure pepped them up, or whether they were beginning to wonder. They laughed and said their only feeling was one of regret and annoyance that their plane would be out of commission for a few days.

The four were Pilot Ralph Keele,
a Salt Lake City Mormon, Co-Pilot William Albright, of Western Springs, Ill., Navigator Robert Radcliff of Richland Center, Wis., and Bombardier Eugene Platek, of Antigo, Wis.

The soldiers have grown such a crop of beards that you think you've driven into one of our western towns just one week before the annual Pioneer Days celebration.

Over here Hollywood could find every type of beard that ever existed. Some are big fierce, some blond and curly, some wispy and foolish, some of the sourdough kind, others as prim and sharp as a boulevardier's. You'll even find the old Irish-type of jaw-whiskers.

I let mine grow for two weeks but nobody noticed it, so I gave up.

In all this area near the front there is no such thing as a Post Exchange. The Army instead issues free such necessities as cigarets, soap, razor blades and so on.

But at one forward post the other day I tried to get some tooth powder, and was told disgustedly by the sergeant that there wasn't any, because we weren't in the combat zone.

"Not in the combat zone?" I said with astonishment. "Who says we're not?"

"Some guy at some desk far, far away," he said. "I don't know where he expects us to get in, in the first place, and in the second place I wish he were here a few nights when the bombs start whistling. I'll bet you couldn't get him out of a slit-trench all night.
Not in the combat zone! Nuts!"

ture Syndicate, Inc.)

Civil War Veterans Will Meet Tonight

Chicago, April 3.—(AP)—Seven or eight comrades of the Civil War will rally 'round the flag tonight for one more toast to the Grand Army of the Republic.

Of the 13 veterans who organized the G. A. R. 77 years ago next Tuesday all have been dead for several years. Those who will attend tonight's celebration ranging in age from 94 to 102, all live here plan to be present.

They'll listen to a group of the old war songs, a reading, and a speech or two. There probably will be some reminiscing, too.

The G. A. R. was formed April 6, 1866, in a small upstairs room in Decatur, Ill. Dr. Benjamin F.
Stephenson of Springfield, a surgeon in the 14th Illinois Infantry, promoted the idea "for the purpose of comradeship and as recognition of the common services of the men who volunteered in the service of our country."

Political Disruption
The organization was disrupted and many posts abandoned because of the injection of political issues during the 1868 presidential campaign of General U. S. Grant, their wartime commander.

It was reorganized along non-partisan lines in 1879, however, and in 1891 hit its peak of 409,489 members in the nation and about 33,000 in Illinois. Today, there are only about 25 still living in Illinois. Today, there are only about 25 still living in Illinois. G. A. R. officials here declined to make public the number left in the nation.

For Hiram Shumate of Riverton, the state commander, this will be a double celebration—his 94th birthday. Shumate is one of the few active members in the state and seldom misses a gathering.

J. S. Dummer of Oakland, Calif., the national commander, who formerly resided at Elgin, Ill., is traveling through and will drop in for the banquet.

Deaths

Suburban—

MRS. MILLIE BARBOUR
Rochelle, April 3.—Mrs. Millie Barbour, wife of Dr. W. B. Barbour of Los Angeles, Calif., died at Los Angeles Wednesday night.
Funeral services will take place at the Little Church of the Flower in Los Angeles at 3 p. m. Saturday, and burial will be in Forest Lawn cemetery there. Dr. Barbour, who formerly lived in Rockford, is a brother of Mrs. Charles Collier of Rochelle.

MRS. MARY JOHNSON

(Telegraph Special Service)
Oregon, April 3.—Mrs. Mary Johnson, 78, died Friday morning at Warmolts clinic, where she had been a patient since Wednesday.
She had been ill several weeks preceding her death.

Born in Sweden Aug. 8, 1864,
Mrs. Anderson came to this country at the age of 17. Her husband, Gustav Anderson, died several years ago. Survivors are four sons, Frank and Harold, both of Oregon, Arthur of Raton, N. M., and Leo; three grandsons, and one sister, Miss Anna Anderson, Kansas City, Mo.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Monday at the Farrell funeral home. The Rev. J. E. Dale, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church, will officiate, and burial will be in Riverview cemetery.

DR. F. EMORY LYON

Chicago, April 3.—(AP)—Dr.
F. Emory Lyon, 78, founder and former superintendent of the Central Howard Association, a prisoner aid group, died of a heart attack yesterday.

Born near Peoria, Ill., Lyon founded the Central Howard Association in 1901 and was its superintendent until last year when he retired.

Funeral services will be held Monday.

Church Societies

Unity Guild—Mrs. O. F.
Goeke's birthday anniversary was celebrated by members of Unity Guild at a luncheon on Thursday at the home of Mrs.
Maria Stackpole. A birthday song was sung for her, and Mrs. L. W.
Miller presented her with flowers.
An original poem was read, and the guest of honor also received greeting cards.

Luncheon covers were arranged for ten members and two guests.
Mrs. C. E. Hill and Mrs. Sheets.
Following a short business meeting, Mrs. Emma Eichler reviewed the book, "Violet," by Whithall-Cook, and read an article,
"Get the Health Habit."

Miss Carrie Belle Swatts will entertain with an afternoon meeting, May 6.

Last year, British "Digging for Victory" gardens produced between 40 and 60 million dollars worth of fresh vegetables.

Marines get their name from the old French word "marin," which means "sea soldier."

OUR MEN IN SERVICE

Luther E. Burket, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Burket of this city, has been spending a short leave here, before reporting to the east coast. He is a newly-commissioned ensign in the United States Naval Reserve corps, having been graduated at Columbia university.

New York City, March 31.

Miss Judy Jones of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, was Ensign Burket's guest at the graduation ball and ceremonies. Luther, a Dixon high school graduate, was graduated from Coe college at Cedar Rapids in 1932. He reached Dixon, Thursday, and plans to return east about the middle of next week.

Sgt. Lowell R. Martin, who is stationed at Camp Crowder, Mo., is assistant file clerk in the inspector's office at headquarters company, S. C. A. T. C.

Seaman Second Class Norton S.
Weed has completed his course of training at the Great Lakes naval training station and has been transferred to Key West, Fla., where he has been assigned to class 12-43, fleet sound school.

Pvt. Douglas M. Floto, who has been stationed at Camp Joseph T.
Robinson, with the 8th service command, infirmary A, has arrived home on a ten-day furlough.

Pvt. James A. Garren is now stationed at the Harrison hotel at Miami Beach, Fla., where he is a member of the 123rd M. P. Co., (A. V. N.) care 401 T. G. B. T. C.,
No. 4.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Myers were pleasantly surprised last evening when they received a long distance call from their son, Seaman 1st class, Robert C. Myers, who is stationed in the East. Seaman Myers left Dixon in January, 1942.

Pfc. Merle E. Bowers has been transferred to San Luis Obispo, Calif. His new address is: Btry.

PERSONALS

Rosemary Torrens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Torrens is home on a week end visit with her parents. Rosemary is a freshman at the University of Illinois.

Mrs. Mary Riordan, Mrs. Philip Reilly, Miss Esther Barton, and Miss Elizabeth Callahan were in Rockford yesterday.

Miss Esther Barton, principal of the Lincoln grade school, visited the sight-saving class at the Wallace school in Sterling on Tuesday. Four Dixon children are students in the class, where an electric eye for light control, and special blackboards and chalk are used, and "fourth graders begin using the touch system on specially designed typewriters.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Penniston went to Clinton, Iowa, today where this afternoon they will attend a concert to be given in the high school auditorium by the Southernaires, popular singing group who are heard regularly over radio. Sunday evening Mr.
Penniston will give the evening address in the A. M. E. church at Portugal.

Flanked Nazis

British Gen. Bernard Freyberg, a New Zealander whom Germans reported killed in the 1941 battle of Crete, proved himself very much alive by leading the flanking attack on El Hamma, Tunisia, that was responsible for rout of Rommel at Gabes.

Glider Girl

WELL-ROUNDED FINISH

CHAPTER XXX

WHEN the glider train had first left Sky Harbor in Phoenix, two individual planes had taken off immediately following. They carried gentlemen of the newsreels and gentlemen of the press.
They were turned back by the Superstition Mountain storm.
Later, though, the sky train came spectacularly out of that storm again, but with only nine of its original 10 gliders!

"Something's happened!" The news men began to shout about it. "That 10th plane—it had the girl pilot. Captain Carr's fiancée!"
They got good photos of the nine ships cutting loose, and when Jimmy Carr's motor plane headed back to look for Number 10, the photographers' ships followed him.
Half an hour later, one of the greatest aviation films on record was being made.

It showed Jimmy's ship dipping dangerously into the canyons of a storied mountain. It showed him spotting a white sailplane on a high and narrow slope. It showed him climb up for safety in jumping, then leap, out in a parachute.
When Jimmy leaped, his chute billowed quickly. Then he began to rock and tug. Thump! When he struck the slope he scrambled and rolled in loose rocks.

"Jimmy! . . . Jimmy!"

Pat was 40 yards or so away.
Jim unbuckled from his chute and ran toward the girl.

"Pat, are you all right? Are you hurt?" He was shouting frantically.

"Yes! I mean, no! I mean—I'm all right! Are you?"

They spoke no more, for a time.
Partly because Pat Friday quite lost control of herself. She was sobbing in Jimmy Carr's arms.
Sobbing, and hugging him, and pressing her cheek to his shoulder.

"Little girl . . . little girl," he was saying, ever so gently.

But the crying didn't last long.
He kissed her twice on top of her head. Then he lifted her chin, blotted tears with a handkerchief, and leaned to kiss her full on the lips. "Pat darling," he said, then,
She just clung to him, while the world swung around and around.

"WERE you hurt at all, little girl?" he asked, finally.

"No, Jim. But I—I guess I was very foolish."

"You're the bravest kid in the country."

"No."

"Yes! Chucking off into that storm—lordy, Pat!"

"I thought I was near Globe.
But I was scared silly, Jim. I—I got up to 16,000! And when I was forced down I couldn't see a thing until around 5000 feet. And the first solid earth I saw was—there!" She pointed to a sheer rock wall as big as a skyscraper.

"Mmmm, Pat!"

"My ship was headed right into
it. And—and I did what you taught me to do. I put her over; quickly, hard. Then—panicked right down. I knew I must be in a canyon, or at least around more cliffs. Jimmy, that sailplane is a dream! I don't believe it's damaged at all!"

He lifted her for a kiss once more. This time she returned it, with a wild surge of ecstasy and abandon.

It was midnight before the two young adventurers were rescued from Superstition Mountain.
Planes flew over the best ground route from time to time, dropping flares, to guide cowboy Bill Barker and others on horseback, with spare animals for Pat and Jimmy to ride. There was no place for an airplane to land within six miles of the mountain. But there was a paved highway, and automobiles took the adventurers back to town.

In Phoenix, apparently nobody had gone to bed. Even at the big hotel on Central avenue where Pat and Jimmy and the other soaring carnival guests had rooms, a throng of people was milling.
They had to be told everything, over and over again. It was 2 o'clock in the morning when Pat got to bed, exhausted. But at 8 she was up again, and Jimmy Carr was in the lobby waiting. So was their loyal friend, big Ed Bryan.

"They loaned me a car to drive us out to Sky Harbor," Ed said.

"They want us there for the big celebration this morning. Last day of the soaring carnival. And say, you two! You stole this show, and I don't mean maybe!"

PAT and Jimmy were strangely quiet. Once, driving out, Pat did speak. "Ed, is—is Loraine Stuart—"

"Oh, that dame! She headed back east! Took a 6 o'clock train.

back to New York City. Brought your plane in safely last night, but she wouldn't talk for our apples!
What do you suppose come over her?"

Jimmy Carr grinned. "No telling! A lot of things, I imagine."

There was a session, then, at the airport. All the bigwigs had to say things to Pat and Jimmy.
The nifty demonstration had proved, perhaps even better than planned, the adaptability of sail-planes. And if a train of them could weather a storm like that, it could do anything! The throng right here at Sky Harbor had seen nine planes cut loose and land safely, and as for Pat—she had truly demonstrated what a motor-less ship could do and what a girl pilot could do! The press men were almost worshipful. The public clamored for glimpses of the handsome captain and the pretty blond girl. A girl who, incidentally, was still called Loraine Stuart! Pat's strange masquerade in public still held.

The session at Sky Harbor was interrupted shortly after 11 a. m.
when the Reverend R. C. La Porte arrived.

"I was asked to come here for a wedding at noon," he told them.
"Oh!"

Pat said that. She looked quickly, and self-consciously, and fearfully as well, at the other men.
Big Ed Bryan was smiling broadly.

"Me and the captain," Ed drawled, "we done some running around this morning, Miss Pat, before you got up. Down to the courthouse, and the florists, and one little place and another, yes'm.
Me, I get to be a best man!"

Pat said, "Jimmy, is—is Loraine—"

"Loraine is headed back for New York, Private Friday," Jimmy said. "But I'm not. My part of that noon wedding is still on.
You're the other part of it."

"Me! Oh Jimmy! No! I—I have no clothes, or—or—"

"You want me to court-martial you, Private Friday? Don't be insubordinate!"

"And anyway, Jimmy you kissed me—but—you never asked me to marry you at all!"

"I'm not asking you, I'm telling you! I'm marrying you at noon, and I'm kissing you again right now."

The newsreel men and the paper photographers recorded that for posterity, too. They like to have a well rounded out finish for a news story.

The End

What's your name and home town?

Good reporting includes getting names and addresses whether on a local police story or the greatest war in history.

Associated Press war correspondents thus never overlook an opportunity to bring the name of a home town boy to the attention of his community.

Take the experience of AP reporter Murlin Spencer.
He went up to the fighting front in New Guinea to check on the exploits of a man named "Jager, or something like that." He finally found Thomas Jager of Greenville, Mich., got all the details for his story.

A little later Spencer found himself crouched in a shell hole with two dead Japs just as the Americans started an artillery barrage. He saw a soldier poised to heave a grenade at a Jap pill-box.

"What's your name and home town?" Spencer shouted.

"He looked at me as though I was crazy," Spencer wrote, but the soldier shouted back that he was Robert Amans of Superior, Wis.

Then he let fly at the Japs and the soldier and the reporter both dropped flat as the shells whined over their heads.

N. U. Girls Entertain for Bride and WAVE

On Thursday evening the girls of the Illinois Northern Utilities company were seated around tables at the Rainbow Inn to honor two employees, Miss Georgia Eastman, who is to be the bride of G. L. Landers, Jr., of the United States Navy on April 3th, and Miss Leona Blaga, who was recently sworn into the WAVEs.

To celebrate "April Fools Day", the dinner was served in a round about way, beginning with the cocktail and immediately followed with the dessert and the presentation of the gifts to the honorees, finishing with the main course.

A centerpiece of spring flowers tapered on either side by candles, adorned the table. Before departing the girls joined in a community sing which everyone heartily enjoyed.

The committee in charge was composed of Lorella May, Audrey Stewart, and Marguerite Wood-yatt.

STERLING TEACHER IS GUEST SPEAKER FOR TRAVEL CLUB

On Thursday evening April 1st, a meeting of the Foreign Travel club, Miss Esther Merchant of Sterling, spoke on Syria and other countries.

Leaving New York on a French boat, she stopped en route at the Madeira Islands, Lisbon, Naples, Palermo, Marseilles, Alexandria and then on to Syria. Miss Merchant was a teacher in Beirut, Puerto Rico and Alaska. In Beirut, she taught in a school for the children of missionaries of the district.

Among the pictures that Miss Merchant showed, were some of Madeira, the Island of Capri, Alexandria and some especially fine ones of native life in Syria. During her lecture she described a native wedding that she attended, and her visit to the home of a native sheik.

Art objects, utensils and costumes brought from the Orient, formed a fine exhibit.

RARE BIBLES ARE DISPLAYED AT ROCKFORD

Current exhibits in the library of Rockford college, announces Prof. Jean M. Sharpe, librarian, include one of South American etchings, cookbooks, and works on art, costumes, and literature, a display of rare Bibles, and flower plates showing regional varieties, selected from the collection "North American Wild Flowers" by Mary V. Walcott.

The Bibles include the Doves Bible, printed 1903-05 in England by the Doves Press, and the Breches Bible, printed in Geneva in 1560, of which the college has a first and a later edition. The Doves Bible ranks with the "Chaucer" of the Kelmscott Press as one of the most beautiful pieces of printing in the world, and was presented to Rockford college by Mrs. F. R. Lillie of Chicago.

FROM CHICAGO

Mrs. Z. Glatter and her young son, Tommy, returned to Dixon, Tuesday afternoon, after a week's stay in Chicago with Dr. Glatter. While she was in the city, Dr. and Mrs. Glatter attended the opera, "The Barber of Seville", and a Red Cross ball. Mrs. Glatter also visited the Chicago and Vicinity artists' exhibit at the Art Institute, where "Port of Missing men," a canvas by John Nolf of Grand Detour is on view, and a photography show, at which Stephen Deutsch won a prize with an advertising print. Mr. Deutsch, it will be remembered, addressed the Dixon Woman's club here last season.

ELKS AUXILIARY

Friday afternoon, members of the Elks auxiliary met at the Elks club for their regular meeting. During the business meeting, the new officers were elected for the coming year. The new president is Mrs. Frank Daschbach; vice president, Mrs. R. L. Zarger, and secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Robert DePuy.

FROM RANTOUL

Mr. and Mrs. David Barton of Rantoul, formerly of Dixon, are spending the week-end here. Mr. Barton is a civil service instructor in aviation mechanics at Champaign field.

WAWOKIYE CLUB

Mrs. Ada Teeter, 610 Third street will entertain members of the Wawokiye club at an all-day meeting on Wednesday.

Spring Frivolity

Dorothy Chapter Has Dress Parade at Birthday Party

The forty-sixth anniversary of Dorothy Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, was celebrated Friday evening in Brinton Memorial Masonic temple, when Mrs. E. M. Bastain's committee presented a most interesting program. Gowns worn by past matrons as worthy matrons on their respective installation nights were modeled as follows:

1912—(Miss Gertrude Youngman), Mrs. L. C. Santileman; 1916—(Miss Alma Moeller), Mrs. John Krug; 1914—(Mrs. Florence Frank), Mrs. Earle Stitzel. Mrs. Frank's gown, worn by Mrs. Stitzel, was heavily beaded white chiffon about twelve inches from the floor. French lace was used as a scarf at her shoulders. 1925—(Mrs. Harriet Beam), Mrs. Grover Gehant; 1926—(Mrs. Mazie Hoberg), Mrs. Hoberg modeled in this gown, which was of white silk, hip-length waistline, and a wide belt, beaded front and back; 1928—(Frances Marks), herself; 1933—(Miss Lucile Stauffer), herself; 1935—(Mrs. Mildred Page Beier), herself; 1936—(Florence Bastian), Mrs. Ruby Coakley; 1937—(Mrs. Beulah Tennant), herself; 1938—(Alma Coss), Mrs. Clarence Sproul; 1939—(Mrs. Martena Gardner, of Sebring, O.), herself; 1940—(Mrs. Ruth Emmert), herself; 1941—(Mrs. Rachel Stewart), Mrs. Clinton Utter; 1942—(Mrs. Margery Barrowman, of Chicago), Ruth Brown; 1943—Mrs. Eula Wilson. Mrs. Emma Eichler, 1908 worthy matron, cut the birthday cake, and Mrs. Ruth Emmert, 1940 worthy matron, poured. During the reading of the history, by Mrs. Florence Bastian, 1936 worthy matron, Mrs. Myrtle Bishop was at the piano. Mrs. Bastian gave several interesting facts concerning every year, describing whenever possible, the installation dress.

Women Can Serve in War as Girls' Group Leaders

By Ruth Millitt
Something is wrong with this picture: On one hand we have community after community excited and worried over the problem of increased juvenile delinquency.

On the other we have fine girls' organizations, like the Girl Scouts and Campfire Girls, suffering from a lack of leaders to expand their programs to take in the thousands of girls who would like to join.

What's wrong is that either a great many women don't realize that providing leadership and recreation for young folks is even more important in wartime than in peacetime—or else a great many women are just plain lazy and not willing to take on the job of leading an organized group of young girls.

The first reason is probably the real one. With all the talk of war, women forget that carrying on the work of established youth organizations is vitally important.

For Easter

Spring favorite is the gray suit with white accessories. Awaiting her escort Easter morn, this young lady wears a smart suit of Hockanum yarn-dyed wool with crisp white gilet embroidered in matching gray. She carries a collar box bag of the suit materials.

President Points to Music Week as Morale - Builder

"Music builds morale, and inspires our fighting men," says President Franklin D. Roosevelt in a letter received by the National and Inter-American Music Week committee, in which he warmly endorses the observance. Music Week always begins the first Sunday in May, and falls this year, May 2-9. The 1943 observance will be the 20th annual.

According to C. M. Tremaine, secretary of the committee, President Roosevelt has been deeply interested in National Music Week since he first became associated with it ten years ago. He has encouraged participating in the annual observance, not only among musical groups, but also among others which use music as an aid in their general program and in their work for the community.

In his letter this year, the President expresses his interest in the broadening of the observance to include all the United Nations, and its influence in promoting the spirit of unity.

For two decades, the President points out, the organization has emphasized the vital role of music in national life. That program was broadened two years ago to include an interchange of the musical treasures of all the Americas. Last year, the committee further aided freedom's cause by encouraging the study and enjoyment of the music of the United Nations.

"Music builds morale," he declares. "It inspires our fighting men on battlefields abroad and in training camps at home. It spurs soldiers on the production front to new goals. It refreshes all of us, young and old alike, as we move forward in our wartime tasks to inevitable victory."

President Roosevelt is chairman of the honorary section of the Music Week committee, which includes the governors of all the states and territories. The active section represents, through their presidents, 34 prominent national organizations, including the Federated Music Clubs, Federated Women's clubs, Daughters of the American Revolution, Camp Fire Girls, American Legion and Legion Auxiliary, Music Educators National conference, Music Teachers National association, Kiwanis International, Lions International, National Education Association, and National Recreation association.

FROM MILWAUKEE

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Cleaver left Friday to return to their home in Milwaukee. Mrs. Cleaver, and son, Laird, had been here visiting her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. I. Goodwin, for a week. At a family dinner on Thursday evening, Mr. Cleaver's birthday was being celebrated.

Dixon Clergyman Is Commissioned as Army Chaplain

The Rev. R. W. Ford, pastor of the First Christian church for the past four years, has received a commission as chaplain in the United States Army chaplain corps and has been granted a leave of absence from the local church for the duration. He is to report to Harvard university, Cambridge, Mass., May 7, for training.

Mrs. Ford and their two children, Wallace and Douglas, expect to remain at the parsonage at 317 Second street, for the present. The Rev. A. I. Martin of Joliet is to fill the vacancy caused by his appointment.

Mr. Ford is president of the Dixon Council of Christian Education, is secretary-treasurer of the Dixon Ministerial association, and secretary of the Toastmaster's club. He formerly served as pastor at Walnut for four years, and also served a pastorate at Truman, Minn. He attended Minneapolis Bible college at Minneapolis, and took post-graduate work at Phillips university in Enid, Okla.

Phidian Club Is Announcing Art Exhibit

The members of the Phidian Art club, are asked to take particular note of a change of date from that announced in the club calendar, to Tuesday, April 13th.

On that date, the club will present an exhibit of water-colors by Miss Edith Bell, head of the art department of Frances Shimer College in Mt. Carroll. Miss A. Beth Hostetter, vice president of Frances Shimer, will talk.

Miss Bell's exhibit, which is now hanging in the Chicago galleries, will be hung in the Loveland Community House, and after the preview for Phidian Art Club members and guests, will be open to the public.

DESSERT-LUNCHEON

Mrs. Charles Sworn, Mrs. W. L. Lebre, and Mrs. Charles Rickard will be hostesses at a 2 o'clock dessert luncheon on Monday for members of the O. E. S. Parlor club. They will entertain at Brinton Memorial Masonic temple.

TODAY'S MARKET REPORTS

Chicago Livestock

Chicago, April 3—(AP)—Hog producers continued to fatten up their porkers today as prices held at the best levels in more than 20 years.

Choice medium weight butchers yesterday soared to $16.10 a hundred pounds, the highest price paid since October, 1920, and 10 cents above the peak of the previous session.

While the extreme gains failed to hold throughout the session and closing prices were 10 to 15 cents lower, average drove costs firmed with the $16 mark. Meanwhile, with advent of favorable weather for early farming chores producers showed no anxiety to convert hogs into cash, especially since the price of their principal feed—corn—was pegged at 1.01½ for No. 3 yellow.

The latest figure available on the corn-hog ration was 15.6 to 1 for the week ending March 27. Ordinarily any ration better than 10 to 1 is considered favorable. This ration is the relation between the price paid for 100 lbs of live hogs and the cost of 16 bushels of No. 3 yellow corn in Chicago. It means the farmer figures that by feeding 16 bushels of corn to his swine he can add 100 pounds to their live weight.

Peak prices for hogs in modern times have ranged from an all time low of $3.50, paid in December 1932, to a record of $23.60 in July 1919.

Vegetable livestock men expressed confidence that present prices could not advance materially because of the numerous restrictions imposed by the government in its efforts to control inflation. They admitted, however, that were it not for these anti-inflationary safeguards swine prices could conceivably skyrocket to $30 a cwt, or even higher.

Chicago, April 3—(AP)—Salable hogs 300, total 5,800; nominally steady; not enough good and choice hogs offered to make a market; shippers took none; compared week ago: all weights and sows around 10 higher.

The new principle in design of the bigger docks is building them in sections, to be towed to the port of operation and reassembled for service—thus enabling them to traverse the Panama Canal, as well as minimizing the danger of loss enroute.

To the charitable Farm Foundation is left all of the real estate owned by former Governor Lowden in Lincoln and Desha Counties, Arkansas, consisting of 21,000 acres of alluvial land. The will contains the following interesting instructions:

"It is my hope and desire that the Board of Trustees will use said property in conducting experiments in small farms for the purpose of developing and demonstrating methods by which family-sized farms, on which adequate attention is given to the production of food and feed for home consumption as well as to production for sale, can be successfully operated and maintained as a desirable mode of life for a substantial portion of the population of the United States.

"I believe the farm family and the family-sized farm should be a special concern of the Farm Foundation. I have looked with concern upon the upward trend in the acreage per farm and especially upon the increase in the number of very large farms. It has been my observation that the small diversified type of farm weathered the depression much better than the large commercial farm. To the extent that the farmer consumes his own product, disparing price ratios are not a problem.

"There is an opportunity for increasing numbers of part-time farmers. The growth of industry in smaller centers with large numbers of the workmen living on small farms seems a desirable trend to encourage. A small farm may provide much of the food supply, but far more important, it provides a better place to rear a family than the city workman can find elsewhere. Moreover, there should be increasing numbers of craftsmen such as carpenters, masons, electricians, mechanics, etc., who live on small farms and serve the rural areas.

"It is my further hope that the Farm Foundation may use the land here devised for experiments with a view to developing better systems of land tenure, looking toward the improvement of the relation between landlord and tenant and providing better opportunity for the more skillful, industrious and thrifty tenants to become owners of farms. I have been disturbed over the fact that so high a percentage of the farm land must be bought and largely paid for out of the savings of each generation of farmers if they are to own the land they till. Studies of methods of acquiring land may well be made, with a view to increasing the probability that the person who buys a farm may not be overburdened in paying off the debt. Long leases, 99 years or even much longer, as well as long-term amortization should be studied as a means of securing the advantages of landownership and yet making less burdensome the paying for the land.

"In making this bequest I have in mind that the quantity and quality of the rural population is a major and most important factor in determining in the long run the strength, the character, and the well-being of the people of the nation. I hope and desire that the Farm Foundation may stimulate the improvement of every phase of rural life to the end that a larger proportion of the best elements of the population of our country may live on farms and rear families under conditions favorable to the building of an ever better civilization. This, I believe, is the best security for the continuance of free institutions."

The 6,000 acre Lowden estate along the Rock river near Oregon, known as Sinnissippi Farm, is owned by a corporation which was formed by Colonel Lowden a number of years ago. The ownership of the stock in the corporation is all vested in the son and daughters of Col. and Mrs. Lowden.

dian division and two British Infantry divisions.

"The record of the Eighth Army is too brilliant to need any praise", General Eisenhower told war correspondents. "It has chased one of the enemy's most powerful forces across the desert and it is still full of energy for the final blow in Tunisia".

Discussing progress of the campaign, Gen. Eisenhower said:

"We have been fighting this campaign as allies. Since November for the forces in North Africa and since October for the Eighth Army. Every British and American citizen and every British and American soldier had a right to draw pride and inspiration from the record which this united force is making for itself.

Americans Regrouped

"In the days of the first drive into Tunisia we threw every American available into the line to help the First Army. These American units now have been regrouped and are fighting as an entity under Gen. Alexander. The American soldiers are showing every day that they are capable of fighting with the war machines which our factories are turning out."

American attacks against heavy concentrations of enemy strength in the Tunisian passes and hills from Fondouk to the El Ghetar area, in the central sector, continued today, but little progress was reported.

Junction Prevented

Marshal Rommel guarded his central and southern flanks with wide belts of minefields, backed up with armored reserves and artillery which kept General Patton's American forces and General Montgomery's British Eighth Army from making a junction, despite determined attempts.

Patton's engineers cleared a narrow lane across a minefield on the Gafsa-Gabes road, east of El Ghetar, and an American tank column went through yesterday morning, but the Germans immediately counter-attacked with 65 tanks and the American armor withdrew temporarily. Three axis tanks were destroyed and the others withdrew under blasting from 105 and 155-millimeter guns.

American infantry advanced a half mile over the roughest terrain. Americans controlling Fondouk Pass made local assaults on high ground south of the town of Fondouk. Stubborn resistance was encountered in this sector and, at last reports, the enemy still held some points of vantage.

Desertions Reported

French troops in the Ousseltia valley advanced their outposts four miles east of the town of Ousseltia, but axis troops still clung to strong hill positions dominating the eastern side of the valley.

(The British radio, as heard in New York by CBS, reported Austrian mountain troops beginning to desert Col. Gen. Jurgen von Arnim in northern Tunisia, bringing to British lines with them safe conduct leaflets dropped by allied aircraft over the enemy lines.)

Without mentioning specific locations in the allied advance beyond Sedjenane, 40 miles west of Bizerte, the communique said British patrols successfully engaged the forces of Col. Gen. Jurgen von Arnim and inflicted casualties.

Six German and Italian fighters were shot down yesterday, while four allied aircraft failed to return.

(From Cairo it was announced that American bombers attacked Messina, Sicily, and San Giovanni on the opposite side of the Straits on the Italian mainland at dawn yesterday and did great damage to those two railway-ferry terminals in low-altitude assaults.

Planes at Low Altitudes

(The attack on Messina followed a night attack, a British communique said, and the American airmen expressed belief they had succeeded in wrecking both terminals on the vital supply route to Tunisia.

(Explosions from thousands of pounds of bombs rocked the aircraft as they blasted away from altitudes of only 50 feet, the fliers said.

(The Algiers radio said French and Americans were continuing to make advances eastward in central Tunisia.

Montgomery's desert fighters were still struggling to close a gap of some 45 miles separating them from the American forces under Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., driving from the central Tunisian highlands toward positions north of Gabes and in the rear of the last-reported location of Rommel's troops.

While Rommel had no natural defense line available to hold the on-pressing British and American forces in check in southern

Taganrog on the Sea of Azov west of Rostov, the maps disclosed.

Publication of the maps came after a special communique last night announced the end of the winter offensive in which it was said the Germans lost 1,193,525 men, including 850,000 killed and over 340,000 captured, and in which the Russians regained 185-328 square miles of territory and captured or destroyed 5,090 German planes, 9,190 tanks and 20,360 guns.

Berlin Broadcast

The map showed the Russians were only about 36 miles from Smolensk at the nearest point where they were just northeast of Yartsevo, a rail station on the Moscow-Smolensk line.

The Red army also has closed in on Orel, 200 miles south of Moscow, until it is only 30 miles east of that key objective.

Both Orel and Smolensk therefore are almost within range of 150 soviet guns, while Taganrog on the Sea of Azov is will within range.

The map also showed that Kirov, 54 miles southeast of Leningrad, is virtually surrounded by the Russians.

From there the line drops down to just east of Straya Russa, south of Lake Ilmen, and then falls in an almost straight line to Khomel, thence southwest to a position about 10 miles west of Velikie Luki.

Swinging in an arc around Velikie Luki almost through Velizh, it continues in a southeasterly direction to a point midway between Yartsevo and Vyazma on the Moscow-Smolensk road, and turns southward in the direction of Spas Demenskoe, not quite reaching that city 80 miles southeast of Smolensk.

Russians Lose Sevsk

The map shows that the Red army battle line takes in the city of Kirov, then continues in a general southeasterly direction to Mtsensk, where it describes a gradual arc around Riel—an arc of approximately 36 miles west of Orel in the center.

The line then continues westward to Sevsk, which is in German hands.

From Sevsk the line drops southward, running through Rylyk, some 25 miles west of Lgov. The line continues east of Sumy where it turns sharply east to a point slightly north of Belgorod.

RAF Pounds Two Sub Nests During Night

London, April 3—(AP)—RAF heavy bombers attacked Nazi submarine pens at Lorient and St. Nazaire in western France last night, the Air Ministry announced today. Two bombers were lost. It was the first RAF night raid since Monday night when Berlin and the Ruhr were targets.

With cannon blazing and bombs spilling from the planes, a squadron of seven or eight Pocke-Wulf 190's raided a town on the south coast late this morning. Several persons were killed when a bomb hit a surface air raid shelter. Anti-aircraft gunners reported they damaged several of the planes.

The raid on Lorient was the 66th of the war and St. Nazaire got its 47th pounding.

Tunisia, its mine-fields and skillfully emplaced machine guns and artillery were reported to be making the American advance on its flank painfully slow.

constructive thing Hitler ever did—unless he cuts his own throat—was to show the world that he could change the characteristics of virtually the entire youth of a great nation in less than a decade by intensive training.

Recently I have talked with thinking people in various countries on this subject. The consensus seemed to be that similar methods will have to be employed after the war to make the aggressor nations peace-minded. Of course that couldn't be achieved through the hammering of propaganda into unwilling minds by conquerors. It would have to be done through the medium of axis nationals who are desirous of peace—and those people exist.

Forcible propaganda does work wonders at times, and we are now in process of administering it in heavy doses to Germany and Italy. I refer to the terrific bombing which is being carried out, especially against the nazis. That bombing is likely to prove a boon to humanity in the long run, strange though it seem. It will help to knock toleration of Prussian militarism out of German heads—and Prussian militarism is the real scourge of Europe.

new board. He further contended that at this season of the year the majority of the members, who were farmers, could use the time to more advantage on their farms instead of losing a day to come to Dixon for the board's meeting, at which nothing would be accomplished but the election of a chairman and the appointment of committees.

Unofficial Vote Taken

In rebuttal of the argument for the special meeting Supervisor Hemenway told the supervisors that all of the business to come before the board at the May meeting could be transacted in one day, as this meeting ordinarily is of little importance other than routine business. Those arguing in favor of the special meeting represented that at least two days would be required in the session and that there would be no saving to the county by waiting until the regular May meeting to elect a chairman. To this argument the Alto representative replied that any and all business to be transacted at the May meeting could be disposed of in one day.

The difference of opinion reached a point where an unofficial vote was taken to settle the issue. Thirteen members raised their hands indicating their desire for the special organization meeting while seven favored the regular meeting in May.

Chairman John Archer addressed the board members, stating that the past eight years of his service on the board had resulted in a happy association. While the members are not at all times agreed in their opinions, he added, they stood by their convictions and acted for what they believed were the best interests of the county. He then called upon Harold Wolf of Nachusa township who has served eight years as representative from his township and is not a candidate for re-election next Tuesday, who expressed his appreciation to the members for the enjoyable associations over the period.

Dorothy Lamour To Marry Army Captain

A hard-time skating party was given by the management of the Dome skating rink last evening which was well attended. Those who did not come dressed for the occasion were fined and the total fines were matched by the management and the total turned over to the Red Cross. Another similar party is planned for the near future.

Tops Chicago Market—

R. E. Crim, living on the Lowell park road, topped the Chicago market the first of this week with 12 head of Herfordshire hogs which were raised and made ready for the market on his farm. The shipment were September pigs and averaged 245 pounds apiece, bringing $15.70 per hundred after commission charges had been deducted. Mr. Crim, who is head of a department at the Medusa cement plant, launched into farming only a few years ago and has been very successful in his specialized undertakings.

New Defense Officials—

Chairman John S. Archer of Compton, of the Lee county board of supervisors and county administrator of the Illinois State council of Defense, today announced the appointment of two important branch heads in the county organization. Mrs. Joy Stitzel Parker of Lee Center township, former Dixonite, and well known throughout Lee county, has taken over her duties as chairman of the women's activities department of the state council program. Assistant Supervisor T. J. Miller of this city, has been appointed to head the department of plant protection and facility security in the county organization.

Sunnybrook 'In' in Major League at Recreation

Clinch Championship by Winning 2 Games from Hunter Five

By BILL EVANS

In the Major bowling league last night, the Sunnybrook team widened their lead by another full game. The Sunnybrook keggers captured two of three games from the Hunter Co., while the second place Lepper Motor Service team was busy losing two of three games in their match with the Reynolds Wire keggers.

In the Sunnybrook-Hunter Co. match, W. Klein of the Sunnybrook team rolled a high series of 548 along with a high individual game of 198. He also had another high game of 196.

Wolfe of the Lepper Motor Service team had a high series of 554 and a high game of 208 in their match with the Reynolds Wire team. He also bowled another high game of 200.

The last place Sweeney and Oester team captured two games from the Hey Bros. team while losing one to them. Hey of the losers led his team in their match with a high series of 538, while McFadden of the Sweeney and Oester keggers rolled a high game of the match with a 214.

The Hub Tavern copped three straight games from the third place Dixon Paint Co. Johnson of the Hub Tavern bowled a high series of 562 and also had a high individual game of the match with a 201. Scores:

TODAY'S MARKET REPORTS

Chicago Livestock

Chicago, April 3—(AP)—Hog production continued to fatten up their porkers today as prices held at the best levels in more than 20 years.

Choice medium weight butchers yesterday soared to $16.10 a hundred pounds, the highest price paid since October, 1920, and 10 cents above the peak of the previous session.

While the extreme gains failed to hold throughout the session and closing prices were 10 to 15 cents lower, average drove costs firmed with the $16 mark. Meanwhile, with advent of favorable weather for early farming chores producers showed no anxiety to move hogs into cash, especially since the price of their principal feed—corn—was pegged at 1.01 1/2 for No. 3 yellow.

The latest figure available on the corn-hog ration was 15.6 to 1 for the week ending March 27. Ordinarily a ration better than 10 to 1 is considered favorable. This ration is the relation between the price paid for 100 lbs of live hogs and the cost of 16 bushels of No. 3 yellow corn in Chicago. It means the farmer figures that by feeding 16 bushels of corn to his swine he can add 100 pounds to their live weight.

While producers had to go back to October, 1920, to duplicate yesterday's peak, hogs sold in September of the same year for $18.25.

Peak prices for hogs in modern times have ranged from an all time low of $3.50, paid in December 1932, to a record of $23.60 in July, 1919.

Veteran livestock men expressed confidence that present prices could not advance materially because of the numerous restrictions imposed by the government in its efforts to control inflation. They admitted, however, that were it not for these anti-inflationary safeguards swine prices could conceivably skyrocket to $50 a cwt, or even higher.

Chicago, April 3—(AP)—Salable hogs 300, total 5,000; nominally steady; not enough good and choice hogs offered to make a market; shippers took none; compared week ago, all weights and sows around 10 higher.

Salable cattle 100, total 200; compared Friday last week: fed steers and yearlings in broad demand, 25¢ to 50¢ higher on all grades excepting strictly choice kinds, these 15¢ to 25¢ up; top 17.75, new high since 1937; next highest price 17.65 paid for long yearlings as well as weighty steers; bulk 14.75 to 17.25, little to killers under 14.75; heifers fully 25 up, with choice offerings topping for class at 16.85; largely

State Committee on Small Business to Plead With OPA

Chicago, April 3—(AP)—After hearing criticism of an OPA order issued Wednesday relating to retailers' makeup provisions on rayon hosiery, the Illinois legislature's committee on small business yesterday voted to plead with OPA Chief Prentiss Brown for a simple formula recognizing standard business practices and granting the retailer an "historic markup".

The committee, headed by Rep. Frederick A. Virkus (R-La Grange), decided to send the communication after hearing the regulations criticized by J. T. Meek, executive secretary of the Illinois Federation of Retail Associations. Meek said:

"This order develops a principle which, if adopted, will extend into all lines of retailing. It is unfair and sets up this store or that store as the place where customers can buy more cheaply without regard to policies. It brings the government into play as a force actually directing the customers where to buy. Continued it will be the entering wedge in complete distortion and eventual revolution of distribution".

Under the order, he said, the largest or class 1 stores could buy from manufacturers at lower prices than the smaller or class 2 or 3 stores, and that the dictated markups were so low that for many stores operation at a profit would be impossible.

"The new order takes no account of costs, rents, locations and volume of business. It is in effect advice to the housewife where to buy. It applies now to meat, groceries and stockings and clothing comes next", he said.

New Type Floating Drydocks Are Built

Washington, April 3—(AP)—A fleet of huge floating drydocks, built to follow the fighting and speed damaged warships back into action, soon will provide a new Navy punch in forthcoming Pacific battles.

Cutting weeks—if not months—off present repair time by their radically new design, the drydocks will add the equivalent of several new warships to the Pacific fleet's efficiency, authorities say.

Development of the floating factories, now being built by the Navy, was disclosed yesterday by Secretary Knox at a press conference with Rear Admiral Ben Moreell adding construction details.

Moreell said three of the docks now being rushed to completion will have a maximum lifting capacity of 100,000 tons—adequate to handle the biggest battleship or carrier either afloat or contemplated—These will be in service in a few months, he said.

Five others, with a capacity of 40,000 tons each, will be able to lift big cruisers and the carriers out of the water for repair. Thirty-five small ones, five of which have been completed, are of 3,000-ton capacity, designed to accommodate destroyer types.

The new principle in design of the bigger docks is building them in sections, to be towed to the port of operation and reassembled for service—thus enabling them to traverse the Panama Canal, as well as minimizing the danger of loss enroute.

To the charitable Farm Foundation is left all of the real estate owned by former Governor Lowden in Lincoln and Desha Counties, Arkansas, consisting of 21,000 acres of alluvial land. The will contains the following interesting instructions:

"It is my hope and desire that the Board of Trustees will use said property in conducting experiments in small farms for the purpose of developing and demonstrating methods by which family-sized farms, on which adequate attention is given to the production of food and feed for home consumption as well as to production for sale, can be successfully operated and maintained as a desirable mode of life for a substantial portion of the population of the United States.

"I believe the farm family and the family-sized farm should be a special concern of the Farm Foundation. I have looked with concern upon the upward trend in the acreage per farm and especially upon the increase in the number of very large farms. It has been my observation that the small diversified type of farm weathered the depression much better than the large commercial farm. To the extent that the farmer consumes his own product, disparing price ratios are not a problem.

"There is an opportunity for increasing numbers of part-time farmers. The growth of industry in smaller centers with large numbers of the workmen living on small farms seems a desirable trend to encourage. A small farm may provide much of the food supply, but far more important, it provides a better place to rear a family than the city workman can find elsewhere. Moreover, there should be increasing numbers of craftsmen such as carpenters, masons, electricians, mechanics, etc., who live on small farms and serve the rural areas.

"It is my further hope that the Farm Foundation may use the land here devised for experiments with a view to developing better systems of land tenure, looking toward the improvement of the relation between landlord and tenant and providing better opportunity for the more skillful, industrious and thrifty tenants to be come owners of farms. I have been disturbed over the fact that so high a percentage of the farm land must be bought and largely paid for out of the savings of each generation of farmers if they are to own the land they till. Studies of methods of acquiring land may well be made, with a view to increasing the probability that the person who buys a farm may not be overburdened in paying off the debt. Long leases, 99 years or even much longer, as well as long-term amortization should be studied as a means of securing the advantages of landownership and yet making less burdensome the paying for the land.

"In making this bequest I have in mind that the quantity and the quality of the rural population is a major and most important factor in determining in the long run the strength, the character, and the well-being of the people of the nation. I hope and desire that the Farm Foundation may stimulate the improvement of every phase of rural life to the end that a larger proportion of the best elements of the population of our country may live on farms and rear families under conditions favorable to the building of an ever better civilization. This, I believe, is the best security for the continuance of free institutions."

The 6,000 acre Lowden estate along the Rock river near Oregon, known as Sinnissippi Farm, is owned by a corporation which was formed by Colonel Lowden a number of years ago. The ownership of the stock in the corporation is all vested in the son and daughters of Col. and Mrs. Lowden.

dian division and two British Infantry divisions.

"The record of the Eighth Army is too brilliant to need any praise", General Eisenhower told war correspondents. "It has chased one of the enemy's most powerful forces across the desert and it is still full of energy for the final blow in Tunisia".

Discussing progress of the campaign, Gen. Eisenhower said:

"We have been fighting this campaign as allies. Since November for the forces in North Africa and since October for the Eighth Army. Every British and American citizen and every British and American soldier had a right to draw pride and inspiration from the record which this united force is making for itself.

Americans Regrouped
"In the days of the first drive into Tunisia we threw every American available into the line to help the First Army. These American units now have been regrouped and are fighting as an entity under Gen. Alexander. The American soldiers are showing every day that they are capable of fighting with the war machines which our factories are turning out."

American attacks against heavy concentrations of enemy strength in the Tunisian passes and hills from Fondouk to the El Guefar area, in the central sector, continued today, but little progress was reported.

Junction Prevented
Marshal Rommel guarded his central and southern flanks with wide belts of minefields, backed up with armored reserves and artillery which kept General Patton's American forces and General Montgomery's British Eighth Army from making a junction, despite determined attempts.

Patton's engineers cleared a narrow lane across a minefield on the Gafsa-Gabes road, east of El Guefar, and an American tank column went through yesterday morning, but the Germans immediately counter-attacked with 65 tanks and the American armor withdrew temporarily. Three axis tanks were destroyed and the others withdrew under blasting from 105 and 155-millimeter guns. American infantry advanced a half mile over the roughest terrain.

Americans controlling Fondouk Pass made local assaults on high ground south of the town of Donouk. Stubborn resistance was encountered in this sector and, at last reports, the enemy still held some points of vantage.

Desertions Reported
French troops in the Ousseltia valley advanced their outposts four miles east of the town of Ousseltia, but axis troops still clung to strong hill positions dominating the eastern side of the valley.

(The British radio, as heard in New York by CBS, reported Austrian mountain troops beginning to desert Col. Gen. Jurgen von Arnim in northern Tunisia, bringing to British lines with them safe conduct leaflets dropped by allied aircraft over the enemy lines.)

Without mentioning specific locations in the allied advance beyond Sedjenane, 40 miles west of Bizerte, the communique said British patrols successfully engaged the forces of Col. Gen. Jurgen von Arnim and inflicted casualties.

Six German and Italian fighters were shot down yesterday, while four allied aircraft failed to return.

(From Cairo it was announced that American bombers attacked Messina, Sicily, and San Giovanni on the opposite side of the Straits on the Italian mainland at dawn yesterday and did great damage to those two railway-ferry terminals in low-altitude assaults.

Planes at Low Altitudes
(The attack on Messina followed a night attack, a British communique said, and the American airmen expressed belief they had succeeded in wrecking both terminals on the vital supply route to Tunisia.

Explosions from thousands of pounds of bombs rocked the aircraft as they blasted away from altitudes of only 50 feet, the fliers said.

(The Algiers radio said French and Americans were continuing to make advances eastward in central Tunisia.

(The Italian communique said axis troops bettered their positions "in some parts of the front" in successful local attacks and that some prisoners were taken.)

Montgomery's desert fighters were still struggling to close a gap of some 45 miles separating them from the American forces under Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., driving from the central Tunisian highlands toward positions north of Gabes and in the rear of the last-reported location of Rommel's troops.

While Rommel had no natural defense line available to hold the on-pressing British and American forces in check in southern

Taganrog on the Sea of Azov west of Rostov, the maps disclosed.

The maps were the first full war maps ever printed in Moscow of the long Russian front.

Publication of the maps came after a special communique last night announced the end of the winter offensive in which it was said the Germans lost 1,193,525 men, including 850,000 killed and over 340,000 captured, and in which the Russians regained 185,325 square miles of territory and captured or destroyed 5,090 German planes, 9,190 tanks and 20,360 guns.

Berlin Broadcast
(The German high command in a communique recorded by The Associated Press from the Berlin radio declared the Germans had launched their own offensive south of Lake Ilmen.

"In knee deep mud and breast-deep water our troops fought their way to their objectives, threw back an enemy group into the swamp and destroyed it", the communique said.

Red Star, printing its first full page map, disclosed that soviet gains were greater in some places than had been believed by observers.

Velizh, still held by the Germans, is about 60 miles southeast of Velikie Luki. The Russians captured Velikie Luki on the central front early in the winter and then began enlarging their gains southward.

The map showed the Russians were only about 36 miles from Smolensk at the nearest point where they were just northeast of Yartsevo, a rail station on the Moscow-Smolensk line.

The Red army also has closed in on Orel, 200 miles south of Moscow, until it is only 30 miles east of that key objective.

Both Orel and Smolensk therefore are almost within range of big soviet guns, while Taganrog on the Sea of Azov is will within range.

The map also showed that Kishino, 54 miles southeast of Leningrad, is virtually surrounded by the Russians.

From there the line drops down to just east of Strava Russa, south of Lake Ilmen, and then falls in an almost straight line to Kholm, thence southwest to a position about 10 miles west of Velikie Luki.

Swinging in an arc around Velikie Luki almost through Velizh, it continues in a southeasterly direction to a point midway between Yartsevo and Vyazma on the Moscow-Smolensk road, and turns southward in the direction of Spas Demenskoe, not quite reaching that city 80 miles southeast of Smolensk.

Russians Lose Sevsk
The map shows that the Red army battle line takes in the city of Kirov, then continues in a general southeasterly direction to Mtsensk, where it describes a gradual arc around Rrel—an arc of approximately 36 miles with Orel in the center.

The line then continues westward to Sevsk, which is in German hands.

From Sevsk the line drops southward, running through Rylyk, some 25 miles west of Lgov. The line continues east of Semy where it turns sharply east to a point slightly north of Belgorod.

From the latter city the lines runs along the northern Donets river, where the Russians still hold the western bank in several sectors.

The front line then follows the river some distance but turns southward 15 miles west of Voroshilovgrad, which is still held by the soviets.

From here the line goes south to a point 15 miles north of German-occupied Taganrog, where it arcs around that city, terminating on the shores of the Sea of Azov.

RAF Pounds Two Sub Nests During Night

London, April 3—(AP)—RAF heavy bombers attacked Nazi submarine pens at Lorient and St. Nazaire in western France last night, the Air Ministry announced today. Two bombers were lost. It was the first RAF night raid since Monday night when Berlin and the Ruhr were targets.

With cannon blazing and bombs spilling from the planes, a squadron of seven or eight Pocke-Wulf 190's raided a town on the south coast late this morning. Several persons were killed when a bomb hit a surface air raid shelter. Anti-aircraft gunners reported they damaged several of the planes.

The raid on Lorient was the 69th of the war and St. Nazaire got its 47th pounding.

Tunisia, his mine-fields and skillfully employed machine guns and artillery were reported to be making the American advance on his flank painfully slow.

constructive thing Hitler ever did—unless he cuts his own throat—was to show the world that he could change the characteristics of virtually the entire youth of a great nation in less than a decade by intensive training.

Recently I have talked with thinking people in various countries on this subject. The consensus seemed to be that similar methods will have to be employed after the war to make the aggressor nations peace-minded. Of course that couldn't be achieved through the hammering of propaganda into unwilling minds by conquerors. It would have to be done through the medium of axis nationals who are desirous of peace—and those people exist.

Forcible propaganda does work wonders at times, and we are now in process of administering it in heavy doses to Germany and Italy. I refer to the terrific bombing which is being carried out, especially against the nazis.

That bombing is likely to prove a boon to humanity in the long run, strange though it seem. It will help to knock toleration of Prussian militarism out of German heads—and Prussian militarism is the real scourge of Europe.

Lee County Board

new board. He further contended that at this season of the year the majority of the members, who were farmers, could use the time to more advantage on their farms instead of losing a day to come to Dixon for the board's meeting, at which nothing would be accomplished but the election of a chairman and the appointment of committees.

Unofficial Vote Taken
In rebuttal of the argument for the special meeting Supervisor Hemenway told the supervisors that all of the business to come before the board at the May meeting could be transacted in one day, as this meeting ordinarily is of little importance other than routine business. Those arguing in favor of the special meeting represented that at least two days would be required in the session and that there would be no saving to the county by waiting until the regular May meeting to elect a chairman. To this argument the Alto representative replied that any and all business to be transacted at the May meeting could be disposed of in one day.

The difference of opinion reached a point where an unofficial vote was taken to settle the issue. Thirteen members raised their hands indicating their desire for the special organization meeting while seven favored the regular meeting in May.

Chairman John Archer addressed the board members, stating that the past eight years of his service on the board had resulted in a happy association. While the members are not at all times agreed in their opinions, he added, they stood by their convictions and acted for what they believed were the best interests of the county. He then called upon Harold Wolf of Nachusa township who has served eight years as representative from his township and is not a candidate for re-election next Tuesday, who expressed his appreciation to the members for the enjoyable associations over this period.

Dorothy Lamour To Marry Army Captain

Hollywood, April 3.—(AP)—Dorothy Lamour, who quit a Chicago elevator operator's job and became a top movie actress, plans to wed soon for a second time.

The 28-year-old former belle of New Orleans will marry Capt. William Ross Howard III of the Army Air Forces as soon as he can obtain leave from his military post at San Bernardino, possibly within a week.

Her first marriage to Band Leader Herbie Kay, with whom she sang in night clubs before entering pictures, ended in divorce in 1939.

PERSONALS

The condition of Mrs. Belle Morris, who is a patient at the K. S. B. hospital, was reported "just fair" shortly before noon today.

Stephen C. Foster was born in Pennsylvania.

Fire Chief Sam Cramer returned home last evening from Chicago where he attended a conference on plant protection conducted by the Office of Civilian Defense at the Medinah club for representatives from the Sixth Corps Defense Area.

A hard-time skating party was given by the management of the Dome skating rink last evening which was well attended. Those who did not come dressed for the occasion were fined and the total fines were matched by the management and the total turned over to the Red Cross. Another similar party is planned for the near future.

Tops Chicago Market—
R. E. Crim, living on the Lowell park road, topped the Chicago market the first of this week with 12 head of Herfordshire hogs which were raised and made ready for the market on his farm. The shipment were September pigs and averaged 245 pounds apiece, bringing $15.70 per hundred after commission charges had been deducted. Mr. Crim, who is head of a department at the Medusa cement plant, launched into farming only a few years ago and has been very successful in his specialized undertakings.

New Defense Officials—
Chairman John S. Archer of Compton, of the Lee county board of supervisors and county administrator of the Illinois State council of Defense, today announced the appointment of two important branch heads in the county organization. Mrs. Joy Stitzel Parker of Lee Center township, former Dixomite, and well known throughout Lee county, has taken over her duties as chairman of the women's activities department of the state council program. Assistant Supervisor T. J. Miller of this city, has been appointed to head the department of plant protection and facility security in the county organization.

Sunnybrook 'In' in Major League at Recreation

By BILL EVANS

In the Major bowling league last night, the Sunnybrook team widened their lead by another full game. The Sunnybrook team captured two of three games from the Hunter Co., while the second place Leppert Motor Service team was busy losing two of three games in their match with the Reynolds Wire kiegles.

In the Sunnybrook-Hunter Co. match, W. Klein of the Sunnybrook team rolled a high series of 548 along with a high individual game of 198. He also had another high game of 196.

Wolfe of the Leppert Motor Service team had a high series of 554 and a high game of 208 in their match with the Reynolds Wire team. He also bowled another high game of 200.

The last place Sweeney and Oester team captured two games from the Hey Bros. team while losing one to them. Hey of the losers led his team in their match with a high series of 538, while McFadden of the Sweeney and Oester kiegles rolled a high game of the match with a 214.

The Hub Tavern copped three straight games from the third place Dixon Paint Co. Johnson of the Hub Tavern bowled a high series of 562 and also had a high individual game of the match with a 201. Scores:

Same Old Story in Camp of Cincinnati Reds; Lack Hitters

McKechnie Should Make His Outfielders Pay To Get Into Park

By DILLON GRAHAM

AP Features Sports Editor
Bloomington, Ind.—There's an old baseball saying that an outfielder who can't hit ought to pay his way into the park. On that basis Manager Bill McKechnie of the Reds should get a gatekeeper here and charge admission to the outfielders at the Cincinnati camp.

For none of them can hit—that is, none can hit in the neighborhood of .300, with enough consistency and distance to give a club offensive power.

In McKechnie's five years with the Reds, Cincinnati has spent around a half-million dollars on outfielders and has yet to come up with a hitter. The deluxe model of this spring's produced a terrific average of .255 with the Reds last season.

Crabtree May Help
Mild Will, the Wilkesburg dealer, figures Estel Crabtree, who was with the Cardinals late last year, will help some. But Crabtree is approaching 40 and can't be used regularly. Max Marshall, with a nifty .255 average, and Mike McCormick, with an almost-as-good .237, will be the power punchers of the Reds' outer garden.

The others are Frank Keller, Hank Sauer from Syracuse, Eric Tipton and Gee Walker, if he joins the club. McKechnie has no idea now which of these will be used. He'll probably do a juggling act with them, trying to extract a lucky hit out of their systems now and then. Frankly, he'd prefer not to think about them—produces headaches, you know.

Honestly, though, there's no use shoving all the blame for the feeble attack on the outfielders—there's not a .300 hitter on the squad. Hitless wonders, that's what they were last year to finish in the first division with the puniest offense in the league.

There's Frank McCormick, .277, at first base; Lonnie Frey, .266 at second; Eddie Miller, .244 at short; and Bert Haas, .239 at third. Despite a couple of poor years, McKechnie still is convinced that the big first sacker is a hitter. Perhaps he may not bat as well as he did in 1939-40 when the Reds were pennant winners, but Bill thinks he can better .300.

He's also confident that Frey and Haas will do better and that a change of scenery will bring a better average for Miller.

Loosened Joints May Help
The Reds have an exponent of relaxation exercises and scientific body flow on hand who certainly is loosening the players' joints and this in turn may make for better batting. McKechnie hopes so and is giving Bill Miller, who conditioned the Tulsa football team last fall, full rein.

Ray Mueller, who was with McKechnie a half dozen years ago at Boston, will do the catching. After playing with Pittsburgh in 1939 Ray was returned to the minors and was with Rochester in 1940-41 and Sacramento last season. He had a fine year in the Coast league, hitting .297 and driving in 102 runs.

Cincinnati pitching looks good, as usual. The Reds lost Gene Thompson and sold Paul Derringer but they have Bucky Walters, Johnny Vander Meer, Ray Starr and Elmer Riddle as front liners, with Joe Beggs, Clyde Shoun and four youngsters who should help as fill-ins.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, April 3.—(AP)—The National Pro Football League will start a three-day meeting in Chicago Tuesday to decide what's what for next fall. . . . And indications are the answer for most clubs will be "football is what". . . . Three or four clubs have hinted that they'd like to suspend for the duration but Prexy Jack Mara of the Giants figures if the others vote to play, the lukewarm gents will string along with them. Otherwise the word is that the franchises likely will be "frozen" and the remaining players distributed among the other clubs. . . . What's more interesting, Mara thinks, will be to see whether the clubs "draft" college players for this season or pick the big name guys in hope that they'll still be available after the war.

OPTIMISTIC NOTE
Still quoting Mara: "From what we have heard, there will be a good many football players next fall—boys in the various reserves who don't expect to be called until December or January and those who have been deferred. . . . As long as we can get eleven men (maybe just a few more, eh, Jack?) and the other guys can get eleven there'll be football at the Polo Grounds. . . . Maybe we'll have to put a call out before the games and get some of those old All-Americans or Monday morning quarterbacks in the stands to come and help us."

CONTOVERSIAL NOTE
Very much agin' freezing franchises is owner Fred Mandel of the Detroit Lions. . . . "Unless the owners are in some branch of the service," he says, "I feel that the franchise should be taken up. If a club quits because it hasn't the fortune to take a losing season, financially, or hasn't the aggressiveness to dig up players, I think it should forfeit its right to play in the league."

CHANGING THE SUBJECT
The demand for press tickets for last night's Henry Armstrong-Beau Jack fight was about as big as for one of Joe Louis' outdoor showings, but there weren't nearly as many ringside seats. . . . The Indians claim that Pitcher Joe Heving, listed as 38 years old, is the only grandfater still active in the big leagues. . . . John Wiethe, the oversized ump who used to be a pro footballer, has retired as an American Association arbiter to devote all his time to his law practice. . . . The West Texas Teachers' freshman basketball team, averaging 6 feet 5, claims it must have set a record of some sort by winning three games in four hours in a city tournament at Dumas, Tex.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR
Jimmy Murphy, Canton, Ill., Daily Ledger: Pitcher George Munger of the Cardinals is a chicken pox patient and Eddie Lake, Red Sox infielder, is suffering from measles. . . . and we thought there'd be no kids in baseball this year."

SERVICE DEPT.
Lieut. Matt Tischler, former Illinois athlete now athletic officer at the Army Air Force gunnery camp at Apalachicola, Fla., figures it's an aid to morale to have the obstacle course end right at the door of the hospital. . . . He claims the soldiers are thrilled to be able to complete the course and walk the other way instead of being carried through the door.

"Beau Jack" Pedals to Victory Over Old 'Hammerin' Hennerly

"Hollow Shell" Wins All Verdicts Except Those of Ring Officials

New York, April 3.—(AP)—Beau Jack climbed on his velocipede in Madison Square Garden's ring last night and back-pedaled furiously for ten rounds. And at the end, two judges and the referee gave him the verdict over Henry Armstrong, who chased him so much the thing began to look like a six-day bike race.

A crowd of 19,986 made so much noise booing the decision that the rafters were rocking and Announcer Harry Balogh couldn't make himself heard to announce the next fight.

Beau failed in convincing anyone—except maybe himself, the officials and a few others—that Hammerin' Hank is anywhere near the "hollow shell" a goodly number of the boys and girls have been saying ever since Armstrong first announced his comeback last fall, after a layoff of something close to two years. For, Henry was a whole lot of fighter last night. And when he did manage to catch up with the backward bouncing Beau during the proceedings, he punned him around the body until Jack was slowed down to a mild canter and "looking for a door" at the finish.

Recall Bob Pastor
After it has all over, some of the boys were recalling that half a dozen years ago, Bob Pastor rode his bicycle for ten losing rounds against Joe Louis one night. But Bob was in there with a guy rated among the deadliest punchers of all time.

And all the Jumping Jack had in front of him was an ex-champ, a fighter who is nearly ten years older than the 22-year-old ex-shoeshine boy from Georgia and who was supposed to be as washed up as your best shirts on Monday morning, despite his 16 wins in 18 comeback starts.

Well, win or lose—and The Associated Press gave 'Lil' Perpetual Motion five rounds of the ten, voted four for Jack and called one even—Henry looked about as much of a hollow shell last night as the British Eighth Army. His legs may be a trifle slower, but he was hotter in the ninth and tenth than he was in the first, as the weary Beau probably was the first to admit at the end.

Copper Processors Rescind Strike Vote

Salt Lake City, April 3.—(AP)—Two thousand copper processors, swayed by an Army plea and a crisp warning, rescinded their vote to strike at Magna and Arthur mills of the Utah Copper Company—a strike that would have stopped a fourth of the nation's production of the war-essential metal.

Loss of a requested 25 cent a day wage increase would be "nothing as compared with losing the war," Maj. M. J. Tierney, executive officers of the labor branch of the Army's Ninth Service Command told a mass meeting of the Independent Association of Mill Workers last night.

He urged the workers to think of their 800 brothers, sons and relatives in the service, and read a letter from Maj. Gen. Kenyon A. Joyce promising "continued interest of the war department in securing an expeditious settlement."

The letter also said the Army would not tolerate such a strike.

Tex Hughson May Be Star Pitcher of Junior League

Red Sox Hurler Booked as Potential Thirty Game Winner in '43

Brooklyn, April 3.—(AP)—The funny thing about Cecil (Tex) Hughson is that about this time a year ago he was ready to quit baseball. Now he is booked as a potential 30-game winner for the Boston Red Sox.

Few persons not connected with the Red Sox knew of his intentions a year ago. But last spring Tex had a sore arm and he was doubtful of getting it fixed. He had hurt it in August 1941, soon after joining the Red Sox.

Hughson remembers the day. It was the second game of a double-header with the St. Louis Browns and Tex pitched in a cold drizzle for eight innings till the fracas was called because of darkness. The next day his right shoulder was sore. He pitched a little after that, and he saw several doctors, but he didn't get rid of the trouble.

It was still there last spring and finally Hughson told Manager Joe Cronin that unless he could get his arm in shape there was no use staying around. The Red Sox were in Miami to play an exhibition game and Hughson was sent to a young doctor and was left in Miami when the Red Sox pulled out.

Takes Everything in Stride

"I don't know yet what was wrong, or exactly what cured me," Hughson said today, "but this doctor, a swell young fellow, and the nurse who ran the clinic, injected novocaine in my shoulder and did a lot of bending and stretching of my arm for a few days—and all of a sudden I was well."

Hughson rejoined the Red Sox and made his first start on May 18. He still was an unknown quantity, but soon became the scourge of the American League and in spite of his late start won 22 games—the most victories in the circuit.

This year a lot of observers think he will win more if he has any kind of a ball club behind him. In Boston they are talking of him as a potential 25 or 30 game winner. Tex takes all this in stride—and being a 6 ft. 3 in. farmer he has a big stride.

Del Baker's Switch Good for Him and Cleveland Team

Muncie, Ind., April 3.—(AP)—Del Barker's switch in baseball jobs, from manager of the Detroit Tigers to a Cleveland Indians coaching berth, was a happy conversion—for Del Barker.

While many might consider the change a bad break, Baker, who piloted the Tigers from 1938 through the 1942 season, says he is completely satisfied and happy in his new duties as coach of the Indians, who are in training here. "I'm happy in my new job," Baker said, "and perhaps I would have to think twice before accepting another position as a manager. Why, the other night I played some pool with the boys. Hadn't held a cue in about 20-years. Just shows how much time I have to enjoy myself. It's a great feeling. Yes, maybe life is just beginning for me."

Boudreau Enthused

Baker, for years a Detroit catcher, emphasized that he had no ill feelings about losing his managerial post. "President Walter Briggs always treated me swell and I have a lot of respect for him," he said.

Lou Boudreau, Cleveland manager, is quick to praise the steel-haired Baker as a valuable acquisition.

"You ought to see what he's doing with pitcher Al Milnar," exclaimed the 25-year-old skipper. Milnar always had a hesitation in his wind-up and it even got so bad the batters could tell what he was going to throw. Well, Baker has been working on him all spring. Now he's windmilling the ball without a hitch. He may win a lot of games for us this season. Baker deserves all the credit, although he won't admit it."

Washington

By Peter Edson
Telegraph Special Service

Republican Congressman John Taber of Auburn, N. Y., and J. William Ditter of Ambler, Pa., having taken a poke at the government's movie making activities, you might be interested in having an inside look at what has been going on. If you have been to the movies in the past year, you have seen some of these flickers, but in a theater they have a way of sneaking up on you, making it difficult to tell what is g. i. or government issue, and what is legitimate, made-in-Hollywood stuff.

Army and Navy have their own movie setups. They have commissioned a number of big-shot directors and producers to do their job. John Ford, who directed "Grapes of Wrath" and others, is a commander and he made the Navy's Technicolor, "Battle of Midway."

Army has commissioned over 400 men for photographic work in the Signal Corps. Darryl Zanuck is a colonel and supervised production of the Army's technicolor of the African campaign, "At the Front." Frank Capra is a lieutenant colonel, Hal Roach is a major, and so on. So far, there has been no major controversy over service films, though the movie-going public may have noticed that action shots of actual war aren't as clear or as close-up as Hollywood has been making in its phony wars of the past, where the set was carefully staged and lighting effects were perfect.

OWI Has Charge
Practically all other government film-making activities are now centered in the Bureau of Motion Pictures of the Office of War Information. It is this operation which is being eyed by Congress now, on suspicion that it is putting out too much Democratic political propaganda, along with war propaganda. Elmer Davis, head of OWI, has taken the rap thus far, as the criticism of OWI has been general and not confined to movies.

Real head of the OWI Bureau of Motion Pictures, however, is Lowell Mellett, who is also one of the administrative assistants to the president and film co-ordinator for the government, meaning that his office is the agency through which the film industry has its principal contacts with numerous government agencies. Mellett was head of the old OGR, or Office of Government Reports, until last June, when it was merged with OWI.

Today, Mellett's bureau operates on a budget of $1.3 million and has about 140 employees. Its principal places of business are Washington, which is headquarters; New York, which is production center, and Hollywood, which is contact office for the movie industry.

For the year ending this June 30, the production end of the outfit will have turned out 93 pictures, 41 of the subjects theatrical, 52 non-theatrical, a distinction which will be explained later.

The average government-produced movie runs about eight minutes and cost around $5000 to produce. The total production budget is approximately $500,000, which is the minimum cost for one average Hollywood full-length feature. A Hollywood super-duper may, of course, cost up to $2.5 million, or double the entire government outlay for a year, which gives some idea of the scale of this operation—decidedly small time by Hollywood measurements.

Many Educational Films
In addition to production cost, the government spends $10 a print for 677 copies of each of its theatrical subjects, this being the number required to get maximum distribution in the 17,000 movie houses of the country, 16,000 of which have made pledges to the industry to show government films. Average picture, in fact, is shown in only about 13,000 theaters, but that is still a darn sight more than any industry picture shows.

Anyway, this adds up to a cost of $6700 for prints on every government theatrical picture, or a total of $559,000 for printing costs. The motion picture industry, through its own agencies, handles distribution of these pictures at no cost to the government.

Non-theatrical pictures which the government produces are largely 16-mm. stuff in the nature of educational films made for showing before Rotary, Kiwanis or Lions, in schools, before labor organizations, parent-teacher groups and similar smaller audiences. Usually, these films are reductions of standard 35-mm. films made for theatrical distribution, but in the case of 16-mm. films, distribution is handled through some 185 non-profit service outlets which have already been functioning effectively for their organizations in similar work before.

a week in Hollywood to work for the government for less than $10,000 a year. The government's Hollywood staff is about 20 people and they, with the Washington administrative headquarters, cost $241,000 a year, which would not keep a film magnate in tax money.

Hollywood News

Trying to ignore the war in Hollywood these days is like attempting to hide a Flying Fortress in a telephone booth. It just can't be done.

Since Victory gardening, even the town's favorite question, "What do you know?" has changed to "What do you grow?" and "What's cooking?" has long since become, "What's freezing?" You start out in the morning looking for romantic gossip, gags and sidelights on glamor and you windup talking to Ida Lupino about her recently acquired hog farm. You start out on a tour of the night spots and everything folds up at the 12 o'clock curfew. And on your way home you meet Carole Landis' mother, and Tallulah Bankhead's ex-leading man, Glen Anders, on their way to the swing shifters at North American.

Even the songwriters have forgotten all the words that rhyme with moon and June. Now it's jeep and G. I. and "Rosie B-r-r the Riveter."

Backstage Too
So you try the sets, hoping to see a line of chorus girls, or one of those camera-scorching love scenes, and you trip over dead Nazis and Japs and find 350 soldiers peeling spuds for "This is the Army." On Columbia studio's set of "Somewhere in Sahara" there's J. Carrol Naish in a tattered uniform of an Italian soldier making a speech which should win him the rhetorical plum for 1943.

A fellow Nazi prisoner is trying to goad Naish into killing his American captors and escaping for the glory of Hitler. "Hitler," Naish tells the Nazi, "dig holes in your heads. He takes out all that is good and put in his own 10 commandments—steal from thy neighbor, 'kill thy neighbor,' 'cheat thy neighbor.' But Hitler don't dig hole in my head. Denounce me. Tell your Gestapo to put my wife in prison. Take my bambino and tear out the eyes. Tell your Gestapo—tell your Fuehrer. I won't kiss the hand that beats me and lick the boot that kicks me. Tell your Hitler—eet ees for men like him that MY God created Hell!"

But when you hear dialog like that you're proud of Hollywood, and you don't miss the sweater girls.

It's Everywhere
If anyone has a gag NOT about the war, Bob Hope must have one. You grab him by the lapel. "The plane," Hope is muttering "was such a rattletrap that when we banked over camp the Gremlins were holding hands to keep the wings from falling off."

So you go to a cocktail party in Beverly Hills and before the evening is over the ladies haul out splints and bandages and practice their Red Cross lessons.

With nothing else to do, you pick up a new script of a 20th Century-Fox picture and on the cover you see printed in black bold letters, "Less Shooting Here Means More Shooting Over There. Save Film!"

See what we mean by trying to ignore the war in Hollywood?

In one of the nation's largest aircraft engine plants there are handled daily about 1500 different sizes and kinds of steel bar stock and about 500 different sizes and kinds of other metal material.

Special Navy Radio Program Will Start on WGN Next Monday

A special radio program, titled "Navy Wings," will be broadcast over station WGN, Chicago, Monday from 3:00 to 3:30 p. m., designed primarily to relate the fascinating story of Naval Aviation to high school and college students listening in class groups. The show will present the exciting adventures of a Navy aviator and also will offer complete information about the current pilot training course open to 17-year-old high school seniors and college men.

Headlining the program will be

Lieut. (jg) Elmer D. Anderson of Ellensburg, Washington, who was recently awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for heroism in the Pacific. An outstanding Navy flier, Lieut. Anderson has seen considerable duty with the fleet in operations against enemy Japanese forces and will discuss his own training on "Navy Wings" as well as the story of the daring feat that won him the DFC. He will be introduced by Lieut. Comdr. Carl G. Olson, Officer-in-Charge of the Naval Aviation Cadet Selection Board at Chicago, and a veteran aviator.

Miss Verda Schutt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clare Schutt, east of Rock Falls and Pfc. Waldo Martenson, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Martenson of South Montmorency, were united in marriage at 8 p. m. Saturday in Rock Falls Lutheran church. The singling ceremony was used by Rev. Wilhelm Streng. Attending the couple were Mrs. James Von Holten, sister of the bridegroom and Frank Schutt, the bride's brother. The bride chose an all white floor length dress with a veil and carried a bouquet of sweetpeas. Mrs. Von Holten wore a blue floor length dress with white accessories. Her flowers were carnations. The bride's mother was in light blue and Mrs. Martenson in black crepe for the ceremony.

Mrs. Martenson graduated from the Rock Falls Township high school in 1941 and attended a beauty school in Dixon. Since finished her beauty course she has been managing a shop in Tampico and will continue with her work.

Pfc. Martenson received his education at the McWhorter school. After leaving school he helped his father on the farm and operated a livestock trucking line to Chicago. He has been in this service of his country for the past six months. Pfc. Martenson is leaving Wednesday to return to his station in Florida.

Torrens Presents Trophy

March 16th, 1943, just ten days after the Harmon Hornets played their third game in the last night of the Lee County Grade Tournament at Lee Center. Mr. Torrens brought the cherished trophy to the Harmon grade boys.

Mr. Torrens selected the grammar grade room as the place for presentation. The basketball players from the intermediate room were called in. Miss Stoffregen, the superintendent, called on the coach to make a speech for the occasion. Mr. Lehman then presented Mr. Torrens who three years ago originated the Grade Tournament system.

Mr. Torrens then explained that the purpose of the Grade Tournament is to give the boys some experience in basketball before they get into high school. With this previous training it has been found that a boy can be a better player for his team in high school. He also said since the Harmon boys do not have a gym for practice, as other schools, it gave him great pleasure to present the trophy to a group of boys that play so splendidly for the opportunities they have had. Furthermore, since the boys came so near getting it the year before, losing by one point, he was pleased that they did not get discouraged but came right back and played harder and better. He hoped that they would use the same "never give up" spirit in their school work. If you don't get the problem the first time try again and work until you are able to master your problem.

Mr. Torrens then gave the trophy to captain Joel Lehman who took it to the co-captain, Edwin Buchanan, and then every one of the players came to see what it looked like.

The grade team and their coach express their heartfelt thanks to Miss Stoffregen, Mrs. Swab and Mrs. Long for their cooperation in the athletics; to Mr. Rheinbolt of Amboy in his effort to secure the tournament; to Mr. Traugher of Lee Center for his efforts and courtesy to the Harmon team during the tournament; to Mr. Buchanan of Harmon for his assistance in the transportation.

The grade school boys owe their success to the untiring efforts of their coach, Mr. Lehman, and wish to express their appreciation to him.

The grade players are: Joel Lehman, Lester Willstead, Edwin Buchanan, Paul Gibley, Lloydie Considine, Joe Malach, S. Lowell, W. Russell.

Green Commends "Be Kind to Animals Week"

Governor Dwight H. Green in a statement today commended the "Be Kind to Animals Week" program of the Anti-Cruelty Society of Chicago and asked Illinois citizens to join in observance of the period, April 11th to 17th.

The statement follows: "The Anti-Cruelty Society has designated April 11 to 17 as 'Be Kind to Animals Week' and is using the slogan 'Kindness to All Living Creatures'.

"Preoccupied as we are with the stern duties of wartime, it is well for us to be reminded that our faithful animal friends need our kindly care now just as much as ever.

"The aims of 'Be Kind to Animals Week' are beneficial and helpful. I gladly commend them to the public, with the hope that the week may be widely observed."

S. medical corps in the South Pacific for the past two years, stating that he has been assigned to shore duty and will be stationed at a naval station in Minneapolis.

The monthly all-day meeting of the Women's Society of Christian Service of the Methodist church was held at the church Thursday. The forenoon was devoted to sewing and quilting.

The 12:30 o'clock luncheon, in charge of Mrs. Guy Putterbaugh was followed by a business session and program. Mrs. Nathan Mount led in the devotions. "Native Leadership" was the program topic presented by Miss Lillian Poole. Miss Marian Clotier favored with a group of violin selections.

Arabs Not So Hot With Americans' Rifle, Revolver

By HAROLD V. BOYLE

With the American Forces in North Africa, (Delayed)—(AP)—Those tales about the uncanny marksmanship of hard-riding and romantic desert Arabs have to be taken with a grain or two of sodium chloride.

If one of these hardy sons of the wastelands has any more on his trigger finger than the average Bronx soda jerker impressing his sweetheart in a Coney Island shooting gallery, he has yet to poke his burnoose over this section of the African horizon.

Two Arabs—father and son—who have a tighter hold on a desert bailiwick peopled by 5,000 Nomads than any American political ward boss, put their prowess on the firing range to an impromptu test in a match with the Garand rifle and .45 automatic pistol against an Army officer and a newspaper correspondent.

The results were completely disillusioning. The correspondent—scoring the first clean beat in his checkered career—got the only bulls-eye. The Army officer had the best all-around record. The Arabs were hardly in the shooting at all, and the conclusion was that any German or Italian hiding near the target would be perfectly safe.

The target was a board about as wide as a WAAC and as tall as a jeep.

Less Said the Better

The less said about the rifle shooting, the better. Each man fired three shots at 400 yards while standing erect with a strong desert wind blowing the end of the Garand around in figure eights. Not one of the 12 bullets hit the board. That left all four "marksman" tied at the halfway mark.

Looking at the Garand rifle as if it had snapped at his beard, the desert chief trudged forward in full robes dignity to a line drawn 50 feet from the board. A white handkerchief was pinned on as a target and the correspondent, enjoying the usual press privileges, was handed a .45 caliber automatic and the first chance of showing himself up.

He swung the weapon forward in a downward arc and pulled blindly at the trigger. The bullet ripped cleanly through the exact middle of the fluttering target.

Completely unnerved by this unexpected success, the correspondent fired quickly twice more and managed to send up twin showers of splinters from the base of the board a good two feet below the handkerchief.

Chief Takes Weapon

The Army officer next dexterously planted three neat holes around the handkerchief, but not quite piercing it. The chief then took the weapon and spread eagled to aim.

"Naharak sye ed. (May your day be fortunate)," said the cor-

They'll Do It Every Time

Look Before You Rip" in Starting Remodelled Work

Urbana, Ill.—"Before you select the pattern for that new skirt or jacket that you are planning to make from father's 'cast-off' suit or topcoat, look the garment over carefully," advises Miss Edna R. Gray, assistant professor of clothing extension, University of Illinois College of Agriculture.

"Hold it up to the light. See if there are any thin spots or places where the weave has broken. If so, plan to try to avoid these when laying the pattern or to mend them before cutting the new garment. Make careful note of the location and extent of this wear. Much can be done to avoid having to use these parts in the new garment by selecting a pattern which has pieces so shaped that they fit within the stronger parts.

"Knowledge of the exact size and shape of the pieces of the old garment will help in selecting the pattern to be used. The best way to gain this information is to rip the suit or shirt apart carefully. Where the cloth is not tender and where it is easy to see what you are doing, a razor blade is a satisfactory tool to use for ripping. In other places pick out the stitching carefully with a pin, for it is easy to cut or tear material when you are in a hurry. Pick up loose threads left from ripping.

Clean Ripped Pieces

Before starting work on the new garment, it is wise to clean the ripped pieces of the old one. This is important not only because it makes the work of reconstruction more pleasant but also because soil frequently covers faded or badly stained areas. Most wool suitings are not only cleaner but brighter and lovelier after washing and pressing. Before washing, examine all the pieces. Make sure that edges which might fray or stretch are protected with a line of machine stitching and that all spots which are likely not to come out in washing are removed.

Wash the pieces in lukewarm water to make sure that no trace of soap is left. When the cloth is almost dry, press it.

"Use a suitable pressing cloth—one that is lintless and which has been washed free of all dressing. Ticking, duck or heavy muslin can be used to good advantage. An excellent pressing cloth for wool garments can be made quite easily by stitching a strip of old wool to a strip of medium weight muslin. Let the muslin extend beyond the wool about two inches on all sides to protect the garment from the iron. To press place the wool side against the garment and dampen the muslin side with a sponge or cloth. This tends to steam as well as press and gives a new finish to the material. In any case keep a pressing cloth between the suiting and the iron and do not press it completely dry or it will look hard, lifeless and shiny. Take particular pains to press each piece straight, that is, to press it in the directions of the threads of the material."
